Fly in the Ointment.
New Independence Day.

Dance, Says the Bishop.

BALDWIN IS OUT. RAMSAY MacDONALD is in. The King, from his sick bed, asks him to form a government.

President Hoover will hear from MacDonald, head of Britain's Labor party, that he, MacDonald, on behalf of the British Empire, will do anything in reason about reducing armaments.

That will please all that prefer economy to safety.

The only fly in the pacifist ointment is the fact that about the time the United States and Ramsay MacDonald get ready to act MacDonald, perhaps, won't be prime minister any more. Somebody will take his place and say "Britain must rule the sea and the air. All that disarmament talk is OUT." America and Great Britain should be well armed and force peace on the world.

Yesterday, June 4, was another independence day.

It marked the 10th anniversary of the adoption by Congress of the woman suffrage amendment.

Women, until 10 years ago, were classed officially with idiots and Indians, "not voting." The abolition of bodily slavery was important.

This day marks the abolition of mental slavery among women, a slavery worse than physical slavery.

Important and gratifying is the news from Washington that President Hoover will appoint a consulting board of army and civilian engineers to consider the construction of a canal through Nicaragua.

That will be another link between the Atlantic and the Pacific, PROPERTY OF THE UNITED STATES LIKE THE PANAMA LINK. Let us hope it will be well fortified, especially from the air. Outside of the air no fortifications are of importance. Who would have believed that would ever be possible when Gibraltar, Malta and the narrow strip of water at Constantinople were so important to the world's peace?

The good and wise Bishop Acheson of Connecticut, dignitary of the Protestant Episcopal Church, was grieved when told that ladies of Christ's Church parish of Bethlehem, Connecticut, do not dance. He object to others dancing.

The bishop said to them, using language less colloquial, "Go on, dance your heads off. It is the best way to get thin."

That recalls the advice of the good French Bishop Fenelon of Cambrai.

A young priest had told his parishioners to observe the Sabbath and not dance or drink on that day.

Bishop Fenelon wrote to him, "I want you to observe the Sabbath and set a good example, but let the poor peasants dance, drink and forget their misery."

Vesuvius continues pouring out lava, compelling inhabitants of the town of Barra to leave their homes, creating panic in many towns. The lava stream is poured into the fearsome "Valley of Hell."

Buenos Aires sends news of great activity in the volcano of Nevado.

Human beings may thank their stars that these volcanos exist. They are to the earth what a safety valve is to a steam engine.

Those that deplore the tendencies of "modern youth," late hours, short dresses, wild dances, cocktails, and the rest, will be interested in an investigation and report by Chicago's Episcopal Church.

Young people are wild, says the report, but the blame rests with the parents. Dr. Young, head of the Howe School of Indiana, says he is more worried about the parents than about children.

It is a fact that bootleggers' customers are the parents. Children despise the law, and parents set them the example.

A gentleman double-locked his stable door after the horse was stolen.

Wheat drops to 94 cents a bushel, the farmer is compelled to sell, and Congress will rush a $500,000,000 fund for farm relief.

It isn't anybody's fault, just "supply and demand," or something like that. But it always seems hard for the farmer to get a good price for his product and easy to get a good price when he has sold it and somebody else has it.

Everything cheerful in Wall Street yesterday. You could borrow money on call at 7 per cent. Not exactly cheap, but by no means satisfactory to the well-organized army of usurers.

4th Temperance Plan Suggests Referendum on Existing Dry Law

By JAMES B. QUINLAN, JR.
1504 West Ramona Boulevard, Alhambra, Cal.

Ten years of practical experience have proved the Volstead act, as a reasonable and practical interpretation of the Eighteenth Amendment, inadequate, pernicious in its effects and inherently subversive to the ends of American individualism and constitutional government.

A law that stands in conflict with the ideals, desires, customs and tendencies of a large number of citizens and forbids a practice which is not in itself a shock to social conscience, imposes an intolerable restraint and discourages self-reliance in the individual.

The end of American individualism is the cultivation of self-reliance—the extension, not the limitation, of individual free action, free choice in matters of eating and drinking, of reasonable lawful limits, is the very essence of personal liberty, a right clearly indicated by the Constitution of the United States, the regulation of which is expressly reserved to the several states of the Union. Abridgement of this right, however noble the purpose, leads to resistance by the individual, to opposition and nullification by the states, and to open violation which takes the form of crime.

HEIRESS QUITS AIR FOR TRAIN

Lowell, June 5—A plane-and-train elopement, with a 17-year-old Lowell heiress as a principal, wound up in Albany, today where the youthful couple were reported barricaded in a hotel waiting for a clergyman to marry them.

Miss Catherine Joan Bagshaw, just graduated from an exclusive girls' school in Lowell, and Richard Brooks of Sioux, Ont., sophomore at Lowell Textile Institute, are the principals in the believed elopement.

The couple, it became known today, hopped off by plane for Albany yesterday, but the bride became airsick and the journey was finished by train.

According to attaches of the local airport and to friends of the girl who accompanied them to the field, Miss Bagshaw, daughter of Charles Bagshaw, wealthy needle manufacturer of Wedge st., and young Brooks chartered yesterday the Waco biplane owned by George Haven and Arthur Gagnon.

While the group of girl friends cried farewells, threw rice and created a din with rattles and cowbells, the couple put two suitcases into the ship, climbed into the seat in front of Haven, the pilot—and

PRIDE SAYS SETTLING ILLEGAL

The settlement forced on the United L. A. W. by Arthur K. Reading while attorney-general cost the 2000 stockholders close to $1,000,000, Edwin L. Pride, public accountant, testified today in the Supreme Court disbarment proceedings against Reading.

The witness, who examined the books of the company at the request of the attorney-general, testified he found no corporate act in the L. A. W. which allowed Louis A. Wolfe to make such a settlement which he characterized as a heavy blow to the stockholders.

Pride admitted that as an employe of Reading he would have approved the settlement, but if working for the L. A. W. would "never have let that stock get out of my hands if I could possibly prevent it."

He admitted under questioning by Attorney Frederick W. Mansfield, president of the Massachusetts Bar Association, having said that if he had gone further, he would have found something criminal on Wolfe. He also admit-receiving a total of $12,100 for his work.

The witness said he was first engaged by Reading on January 21, and on December 9 Attorney Gaskill copied for the L. A. W. asked him for a bill. He said the bill was presented to Gaskill in the presence of Reading, and the former said there was no reason why the book should not be turned back. They were turned back, according to the witness.

$30,000 FOR READING.

Q. You knew I was going to ask you that question. You didn't even look it, did you? A.—Mr. Mansfield, I don't know what is going on in your mind.

Pride said he was in the employ of Reading, but received his fees from the United L. A. W. He said $125,000 was paid to Reading for distribution to the subsidiary companies, and admitted receiving a check for $6000 from the attorney general and one for $25600 from the United L. A. W. for services of himself and assistants from January 31 to November 10.

Q.—You knew there was a sum set aside for Reading, didn't you? A.—Yes; he told me he had set aside $2000 for fees and $2000 additional.

Q.—What was the $2000 for? A.—I don't know. Probably expenses.

The witness then said the settlement effected by Reading resulted in close to $1,000,000 being taken from the United L. A. W. and it was a heavy blow to the 2000 stockholders.

Q.—You found no corporate act in the L. A. W. allowing Wolfe to make such a settlement? A.—No.

Q.—You thought that Wolfe yielded easily, didn't you? A.—Objection sustained.

Q.—Did you say to Buckley, a representative at the State House, that if you had gone before the last investigation you would have found something criminal on Wolfe? A.—Yes.

Q.—But you stopped before you got that far? A.—Yes.

Pride testified that he found enough evidence to justify criminal action, and admitted, under questioning by Atty. Mansfield, that he had made a report to that effect to Atty-Gen. Reading.

EVIDENCE UNSATISFIED

Pride gave in detail his examination of the books of the company, and cited many entries which he asserted were unjustified. He said he noted the entry of checks to directors of the subsidiary companies, which on the books were for services rendered.

The witness testified he told Reading about how the checks were entered as expenses for which stock was later issued. He said he told the attorney general he did not think it was proper entry, and did not believe the Public Utilities Commission would stand for stock issued in that manner.

"Reading immediately told me to tie his stock and cancel it, and he I was in his office he called Tattield and others, explaining what he had done, and all d their stock should be re-ed."

Was there any reason why ding as counsel for the Boston idiary should receive a check m the United L. A. W.? A.—e amount paid was from Worcester, but as an expense to the Boston subsidiary.

Q.—Will you answer my question yes or no. Mr. Reading received a check from the United L. A. W. office at Worcester, did he not? A.—Yes.

Q.—An extensible payment for that stock? A.—Yes.

Q.—Didn't you find he had taken $40,000 in the guise of a drawing account? A.—I found he had charged $40,000 against the drawing account.

LINDY BOAT IS LIABLE TO BE FIRED UPON

If Col. Charles A. Lindbergh and his bride, the former Anne Morrow, are cruising in New England waters with the name of their cabin cruiser concealed they are liable to be fired upon by the coast guard, it was declared today.

The new famous bridal cruiser Mouette is believed to be a craft numbered K21025 that slipped out of Provincetown today headed west, or toward Plymouth and Boston. The name was covered, and has been covered, with canvas.

According to coast guard officials, the coast guard has a right to fire on any boat as a possible rum runner or pirate if the parties aboard refuse to identify themselves or their craft.

"If it is true that Lindbergh has camouflaged the name of his boat," said one Coast Guard official, "what a fine chance for the rum boys to pull a fast one on us. All they have to do is to use a 38-foot launch like Lindy's and put canvas over the name.

"We have one procedure in such a case. When the name of a craft is purposely disguised or hidden, we must stop the boat, and we have a perfect right under the law to fire upon such a boat.

"Naturally, we always give a boat a chance to prove its identity before firing upon it, but as far as we are concerned, a boat hiding its identity is either one of two things—a pirate or a rum runner.

"Captains of all Coast Guard ships have strict orders to investigate all craft failing to show identity plainly, and you can't expect the captain of a Coast Guard boat to be a mind reader."

PARSON MUST SUE AGAIN

Houlton, Me., June 5. Although John Franklin, otherwise known as Sven Hedstrom, young Swedish minister of Malden, Mass., won a $2500 verdict in his $10,000 suit for alienation against August Erickson, prominent layman in the Swedish Lutheran Church of New Sweden, the Maine Law Court has upset the verdict and granted a new trial in a decision just handed down.

The decision sets forth that the alleged slander was uttered in 1922, but the writ of action in the case was dated Oct. 12, 1927, and as the Maine law provides that action must be started within two years of the alleged slander, the verdict was not arrived at within the law.

Death Rides With Love Peace in Blast

A death bed reconciliation between a victim of the East Braintree oil blast and his estranged wife, was a tragic feature, at noon today at the Quincy City Hospital while two other dead were being pulled from the smouldering ruins.

B. Frank Ford, 21, of 2 Hayward st., East Braintree, a fireman for the oil company, was severely burned, but managed to stagger from the blazing plant. He was taken to the hospital and seemed to be out of danger. About midforenoon, however, he began to complain that the burns were affecting him. Although he did not know it, he was slowly dying.

Hospital authorities asked the police to find his wife, who was said to live in Chelmsford. The couple had not lived together for several years due to personal differences.

Mrs. Ford was found by the police. They began a wild race with death to the hospital, with an escort which cleared the road while the police automobile dashed at all possible speed. The race was won, for the wife arrived half an hour before Ford's death.

The wife tearfully told her husband how their four children had grown and how they had missed him. She tried to encourage him, but he seemed to realize that it was in vain. He was happy when she made up their little disagreement, and then died in her arms.

12 CLERKS FLEE QUINCY FIRE

Twelve clerks in the office of the Quincy Electric Light Company in the Clevedon Block, Quincy, fled in the street today when fire broke out in the William Rice studio, directly under the light company offices.

The fire was confined to the studio, but the smoke seeped through to the office above. Damage was estimated at $3500 by fire and police officials.

The fire was discovered by Mrs. William Rice, who was at work in the rear of the studio.

The blaze got away to a quick start, but with much difficulty the firemen saved hundreds of photograph plates. No cause was immediately determined.

Two families in a wooden duplex dwelling adjacent to the burning structure were aroused by the smoke and gathered their belongings, preparatory to flight.

The fire was on the spot of the worst fire in Quincy, 25 years ago, when the Berman block was razed.

The clare and smoke aroused Mrs. Laura M. Smith, on the first floor in the next building, who ran to the street to sound the alarm.

the ship took off and disappeared to the west.

The girl friends said today, when the departure became known, that Miss Ingalsbee and Brooks were eloping to Albany in the plane, and that today they planned to fly on to Syracuse.

The departure from Lowell airport was made only a few hours after the girl had been graduated from the Rogers Hall School for Girls, where Miss Ingalsbee was one of the most popular young ladies.

Not only was she a member of the baseball and hockey teams but she was in the student council, was class leader and song leader of the school, was in the Christmas pageant and senior pageant, was class poetess and was a member of the Cap Spanish, Dramatic and Glee clubs.

PREMIERSHIP ACCEPTED BY M'DONALD

London, June 5 (AP)—For the second time in the history of Great Britain the reins of government today were in the hands of the Labor party.

Ramsay MacDonald, whose party won so extraordinary a victory in last week's general election, emerging with the largest membership in the House of Commons, visited King George at Windsor Castle today and accepted His Majesty's invitation to form a government.

Only 24 hours previously Stanley Baldwin, Conservative prime minister for the past five years, had visited the King's sick room in Windsor Castle and had tendered his resignation.

Official announcement of the acceptance was made at Windsor Castle, where King George is ill, a few minutes after the Labor leader had called and left to go back to London.

MacDonald arrived at 11:04 a. m. today with his son, Alastair MacDonald, and Lord Arnold. The King's equerry, Col. Seymour, escorted him inside the castle. He remained slightly more than an hour, leaving at 12:18.

MacDonald to Take Up Debt With Hoover

Paris, June 5 (AP) Ramsay MacDonald is quoted in the Petit Parisien today as saying that the new Labor government expects to enter relations with President Hoover immediately on the debt question as well as that of disarmament.

Interallied debts and reparations are two different problems and must be treated separately, Mr. MacDonald told the correspondent of the paper.

"And concerning the former separate question, the United States will have much to say in examination of a settlement," Mr. MacDonald continued. "Discussion of this will be resumed upon a new basis."

pany, severely injured and burned. Held at Quincy City Hospital.

JOHN T. HOWSBERGER, 35, 32 Foye st., Braintree, pipe fitter at Cities Service Refining Company, burned, treated at Quincy City Hospital and allowed to go home.

MARK HENNEBERRY, 45, 31 Hillside ave., East Braintree, worker at Cities Service Refining Company, burned about face, treated at home.

The two bodies were found wedged under piles of still smoking debris by workmen occupied in cleaning up the wreck some little distance from the big explosion.

ALMOST REACHED SAFETY.

This fact seemed to emphasize that the two men made a tragic dash for safety when they heard the rumbling of the gas just about to explode. The positions where they were found revealed that they almost made their way out, but a shower of brick and a spray of burning oil dropped them in their tracks.

At the time these bodies were being recovered from the wreckage Ford died from burns which at first were not considered serious. Ford had earlier in the day been able to talk while swathed in bandages, but had a relapse.

It was a tragic day in the Chase home, for it was the 39th birthday of the head of the family and his wife had planned a big party in his honor.

Mrs. Chase all morning refused to believe her husband was dead. She insisted he must be inside the ruins, alive and waiting for a chance to get out.

When police tried to find her to ask regarding disposition of body she could not be found. Two hours' search near her home and around the wrecked plant failed to reveal her. Police fear she may have heard of the recovery of the charred body and is wandering hysterically.

While estimates were being made of a probable damage of about $500,000, three separate investigations were underway. The first was personally conducted by George C. Neal, state fire marshal.

NEAL STARTS PROBE.

Edward Murtagh, State fire deputy of that district, arrived on the East Braintree plant immediately after the explosion. He commandeered the State car of Marshal George C. Neal at the State House, who detailed three experts to the scene. Later Marshal Neal departed for East Braintree.

According to Ford and Howsberger, the two men had been working in Still No. 14, one of the 15 40,000-gallon structures on the north side of the boundary of the Cities Service plant.

Just before midnight, they said, Chase and Ford heard a hissing as its way along a pipe leading to the still. In a heroic attempt to prevent an explosion, Chase led a rush on the fire. He and his three helpers threw sand on the tongues of flame. For a moment they believed their act had saved the plant.

Then, within the depths of the still's huge tank, they heard a strange sizzling noise.

They knew what it must be, and each dashed for the outer air and safety.

BLOWN THROUGH WALL

Ford stumbled through one door, Alton Alnquist, 21, of 7 Fellows ave., Braintree, a fellow workmen, running from other parts of the grounds, threw him to safety and turned back to help Chase. He was screaming with pain and was only semiconscious.

Howsberger, who escaped — or was blown through a shattered wall—was also wrapped in fire. He had sufficient presence of his faculties to hurl himself on the ground and roll until his clothes were extinguished.

Lewis M. Bound, general superintendent of the Cities Service plant, was at the plant at the time of the explosion and led the fight against the flames.

Six-year-old Dorothy Carroll of Quincy was seriously injured when she was struck by a motor car operated by Charles A. Malcolm of Hingham, on Quincy ave., Braintree. She was taken to the office of Dr. C. S. Webber of Weymouth by her father, Daniel M. Carroll of 395 Quincy ave., Quincy, and was found to be suffering from a broken left arm and a fractured skull.

Durant Calls Glass and Couzens Are 'Noisy Fellows'

New York, June 5 (INS)—C. W. Durant, millionaire stock market operator, today used part of his $1000-a-day private stock market cable between New York and Paris to call Senator Couzens of Michigan and Senator Glass of Virginia "noisy fellows."

The statement sent by Durant from Paris was in reply to attacks made on him by the two senators.

"My compliments to Senators Glass and Couzens. Sarcastic and inaccurate statements by a few noisy senators will not prevent the business men of America from protesting against the illegal action of the federal reserve board."

FIERY WALL OF LAVA BURIES VILLAGE

7000 people, might be spared in large part.

The village of Barre, which with Terzigno, has been saved hours before when the first lava erupted cooled before reaching it, was also in the path of the new outflow from a crater on the southeast side of the mountain. Barre already has been evacuated.

Accompanying the lava were masses of stone, some weighing more than 250 pounds. These were thrown high into the air from the volcano's cone. Columns of smoke three miles high ascended from the crater. The grand crater was filled with lava.

A number of tourists who ventured dangerously close were sent scurrying for safety with the renewal of the eruption.

The Vesuvian Conservatory calculated that during the past two days more than 5,000,000 cubic meters of lava had poured forth from the crater, an amount about half that emitted during the destructive eruption of 1906.

Inhabitants of Terzigno, trudging behind their two-wheel carts containing all their worldly belongings, were in tears as they evacuated their home. Many did not leave until the lava had reached the town's reservoir at 1 a. m. and until after it had popped into Campitello, nearby.

Students Injured by Molten Lava

Naples, June 5 (INS)—A number of university students, caught in an avalanche of molten lava from the new craters of Mt. Vesuvius while watching the eruption, were injured today.

A flaming river of destruction is still pouring from the mountainside. The flow of lava towards Avino has increased. It is encircling the ancient village of Boscotrecase, which is again menaced with destruction.

The outburst is similar to the eruption of 1810 and 1822, which were particularly destructive.

Naples Darkened by Dense Volcano Smoke

Naples, Italy, June 5 (AP)—Huge clouds of smoke, laden with ashes from the belching throat of Mt. Vesuvius, hung over Naples today and turned the brightness of noon into a kind of twilight.

Neapolitans were unable to see their familiar landmark which was clouded by the screen of smoke issuing from its crater.

DEADLOCK WILL NOT BUDGE

Senate and House conferees on Elevated legislation deadlocked, after a two-hour session today stated nothing approaching a definite position had taken form. The committee adjourned subject to call.

It is understood the Senate group is sitting tight on the Bacon amendment, waiting for the House members to offer a compromise.

Sitting with the conferees for some time were Senate Counsel William E. Dorman and House Counsel Henry D. Wiggin.

At the beginning of the get-together Representative Henry L. Shattuck of Boston, one of the three House members of the committee, presented each of his associates with an inexpensive wooden pipe, in shape similar to the well known T. D. But no assurance went with the gift as to whether it was to be peace or war.

pressions as to the very essence of Christianity and Catholicism." His Holiness declared in the letter to Cardinal Gasparri.

"There has been an attempt to remedy this, but it does not seem to us to have met with full success."

"Distinguishing between historical and doctrinal affirmations would be in the manner of the worst and most condemnable modernism," continued the pontiff in reference to the speech in the senate on May 25.

"The divine mandate to all peoples antedates the calling of St. Paul; before that, there was the call to St. Peter to the gentiles."

The pontiff continued by defending the doctrine of the universality of the church and refuting Premier Mussolini's implied thesis that it was Rome which saved christianity and not christianity the Roman empire.

CIVIL SERVICE BOARD TAKES ACTION

Six physicians have been named today to investigate the physical tests which candidates for promotion in public service must undergo to conform to civil service requirements.

Chairman Elliot H. Goodwin of the State Civil Service Commission has informed Speaker of the House Leverett Saltonstall that the following physicians have been invited to examine the physical tests:

Dr. George H. Bigelow, State health commissioner; Dr. Roger I. Lee of Boston, Dr. Alfred Worcester of Harvard, Dr. Francis D. Donoghue, industrial accident medical adviser; Dr. Frank P. Williams, surgeon-general, and Dr. Richard T. Leader, regional medical officer of the United States Veterans' Bureau.

Speaker Saltonstall has requested that the reports of the testers be made public.

A demonstration of the physical tests was given at the request of Governor's Councillor Esther M. Andrews and Representative Martha N. Brooks, three men being tested in their presence. Councillor Andrews voiced surprise at its simplicity, declaring that with the exception of weight lifting, boys would laugh at it. She admitted, however, that persons with heart trouble should not attempt it.

POLICE CHIEF'S 'GAS PEN' IS TRIED OUT

A demonstration of the new type of "gas fountain pen" used in many cities by police in quelling minor riots was given today at the third bimonthly meeting of police chiefs and detectives at police headquarters.

The appliance is shaped like a pen, and the hollow space is filled with gas which can be sprayed out by release of a lever. The gas will render helpless everyone in a space equivalent to an ordinary room. The value of the weapon is that it can be worn as if a real pen.

These gas weapons are now used in 9000 out of the 27,000 banks in the country, the manufacturer said.

Several police volunteered as subjects for the demonstration.

Two local police were keenly interested in the famous "gas billy." This is a weapon shaped like a night stick, but containing enough gas to smother everyone within 50 feet. The gas is released by a lever, as in the case of the gas fountain pen. Both new weapons keep their victims helpless for about an hour and a half, but there are no poisonous after effects.

The manufacturer made the claim that his gas pen can be "fired" onetwentieth of a second quicker than a revolver. This means, he said, that the policeman will have the jump on a gunman if both flash their weapons simultaneously. The gas would empty the gunman before he could pull the trigger, even though the fraction of a second is a small margin, the maker declared.

Famed Old Bowery Theater Fire Swept

New York, June 5 (INS)—The old Bowery Thalia Theater, the most historic theatrical landmark in America, and the home of the drama in the days of its American glory, was destroyed by fire today.

Out of the ashes of this famous old playhouse there rose today memories of actors, and actresses who trod the boards to the delight of numberless theater-goers who are now dust and forgotten.

For more than a century this cradle of the American drama first known as the Bowery Theater, had been the center of the finest in American theatrical productions until vaudeville, the movies and the change in public taste pushed it into the background.

Its name was changed some years ago to the Thalia theater and in still later years it was known as the Chinese theater, but always the atmosphere of the drama remained in the dusty old walls that had echoed so often to the applause of audiences.

The theater was a five story building from numbers 46 to 50 Bowery in the heart of what, in modern years was the downtown East Side.

FACE CHARGES OF CONSPIRACY IN BIG CASE

Two Government witnesses in the rum running conspiracy case now on trial in the federal court were placed under arrest a few minutes after the Government rested today.

The men were immediately arraigned before U. S. Commissioner E. C. Jenney on charges of facilitating the transportation and concealment of smuggled liquor during the summer of 1928. Both, according to federal authorities, had confessed their part in the conspiracy and failed to assist the Government when on the stand. When they took the stand they either refused to answer questions or said they could not remember.

SAY STORIES CONFLICT

Louis L. Pickman, a taxi driver of Anderson st., West End, and Simon Alpert, New Bedford oil salesman, were the two arrested. Government official said other arrests will be made as a result of conflicting statements made to customs officials before the trial and statements made on the stand.

Thirteen men are on trial in the case, two of them being David Rosen, a Brimfield st. merchant, and George Hoesman, former Coast Guard boatswain of Fall River.

A few minutes after the government closed its case, Pickman and Alpert were arrested in the corridor. Pickman, according to authorities, made a full confession to Deputy Collector of Customs Thomas Finnegan on December 21, 1928.

LOSE MEMORY.

He refused on the stand to answer any questions on the ground that he might incriminate himself. In this he was upheld by Judge Clarence Hale.

Alpert, also alleged to have made a confession about three weeks ago, answered the questions of Assistant United States Attorney Hubert C. Thompson with the laconic "I don't remember."

At arraignment before Commissioner Jenney they were held in $5000 for a hearing.

The conspiracy trial grew out of the seizure of the speed boats Tramp and Marge, which the government alleges were running rum on the Cape in 1928.

BOY FLEES COT IN HOSPITAL

Hospital treatment doesn't appeal to Paul Grillo, seven years old, of Unity pl., North End, so he led attendants at Haymarket Relief Hospital a merry chase early today.

Paul had been rescued from drowning off the North End Park pier by James Capuano of 12 Hanover ave. and was safely tucked away in bed at the hospital to recover from the effects of immersion.

A nurse saw a small, white-clad figure stealing through the lobby in the early morning. It was Paul. Before he could be stopped he had opened the door and was out on the street. After a chase the boy was caught and returned to his cot.

PROBE SALE OF CITY LAND IN CAMBRIDGE

By a vote of the Cambridge City Council the finance committee, while his a committee of the whole, will investigate the proposed sale of two parcels of city-owned land.

On two previous occasions the committee on public property and public institutions reported favorably on the sale of these properties.

Besides the finance committee, the mayor, city auditor and superintendent of streets will sit in on the hearing to decide whether or not the land should be sold.

One parcel of the land, which adjoins Engine 7 property, it was intimated, may be used if a ladder truck is ever housed at that firehouse. The other parcel, it was brought out, contains an element of doubt as to title.

Already the city solicitor has been requested to investigate the title to both parcels of land and it is expected his report will be available when the finance committee meets to make a decision on an order introduced by Councillor D. J. Murphy the superintendent of streets is requested to construct all street work with city labor rather than by contract labor, as has been the procedure in the past, especially on the biggest street construction jobs.

By so doing, the councillor explained, the annual winter lay-off would perhaps be unnecessary. "It is not the intention of the street superintendent to do this work with city labor," he stated.

"At present there are hundreds of laborers in the city out of employment and if this work was done by the city instead of by contract many of the men could be put to work.

"If this work is done by contract you will see many laborers walking the streets after election. It is my intention to see that our own residents are put to work. It is only a question of giving them employment or being forced to care for them in some other way, he said.

YOUTH CAUGHT IN CHASE AS A THIEF

Following a chase through streets in the Cambridgeport section early today, Edward R. Darragh, 21, of Westmoreland ave., Arlington, was arrested and hooked at the Central sq. station on the charge of breaking and entering in the night time and the theft of valuable clothing.

He was photographed and fingerprinted at police headquarters. Arraigned in East Cambridge Court he was held in $5000 for a hearing next week. In default of bail he was committed to the House of Correction.

Police say Darragh was seen leaving the clothing store of Marks on Brothers in Massachusetts ave., with overcoats for men and women and two hats, and had got to a point near Norfolk st. when a truckman tried to apprehend him.

Frightened by the truckman whose name is withheld, Darragh dropped the clothes and ran away.

Patrolman Joseph O'Connor chased Darragh through different streets. Patrolman Edward J. Tierney, Cornelius Lehane and Jeremiah Healey joined in the chase, which led through back and side streets and alleys.

Darragh proved too fleetfooted for the officers and vaulted several fences, cutting his face. He was trailed to a house in Norfolk st., where he was taken into custody.

At a lodging house in Pearl st., where Darragh roomed, a valuable motorcycle, alleged to have been used by him, was found.

Darragh refused to talk about himself, police say.

A theory that the automobile might have been mistaken for that of a gangster was considered by police, who said the shots probably were fired by bootleggers who mistook the Fess machine for that of a rival.

In a ring ceremony before about 350 guests from the ranks of Boston and Brookline's important ones, this Junior League member will be given in marriage by her father, Dr. Eliot officiating. H., farm home nowadays, awaiting the return of Miss Nancy O. Morison, who has been with Mr. and Mrs. George Swinnerton Parker and Miss Sally Parker on an extensive European tour since last February. The Parker party is due home this month and many are the unusual adventures that the two girls can relate. Their itinerary took them through Egypt, Greece, Turkey, and all over Europe. Miss Elizabeth Morison, who is to be a debutante of this season, will not return until September, in time for Bryn Mawr College examinations.

PARENTS OF POPULAR debutantes evidently believe that silence is golden when moves are afoot for preserving the health and beauty of these same debs. At any rate, the Parents' League frequently slips in and out of the Chilton Club and their meetings are unheralded—and unreported. But it now transpires that this league elected a new president recently, who is Mrs. Manning Emery, Jr., of Dower House, Framingham. Mrs. Emery's daughter, Miss Betty, was one of the prettiest debs of the last season, always sought after by the organizers of smart dances.

Addresses were given by Dean W. Malott, dean of the Harvard University School of Business Administration, and William O. O'Connell, treasurer of Z. & W. M. Crane, Inc., of Dalton.

Dean Malott, in his address, divided the work of the delegates into two relationships:

"First, with the boys whom you are helping to a better citizenship in the future, and second, with the public whom you are serving and upon whom you are dependent for support."

In a detailed statement of the best methods of obtaining publicity and raising money, Dean Malott dwelt on a cardinal principle followed by Bishop Lawrence, who has raised millions of dollars for the Episcopal Church, Harvard University and other causes.

"My rule is never to allow a person to sign a pledge in my presence," he said. "If my facts do not convince him, if the cause apart from the influence of my presence will not bring his contribution, I do not want it. The American people on the whole are generous. But they must have facts and be reasonably convinced."

TALKIES FACING EQUITY STRIKE

New York, June 5—An actors' strike which may gag the "talkies" today stared into the lenses of the moving picture industry, providing arbitration methods fail.

The film producers received the 100 per cent unionization announcement by Frank Gilmore, president of the Actors' Equity Association, with stiff spines. In fact, several went further and registered facial and vocal defiance.

MacDonald Upsets Prophecy of Old Scots Woman

London, June 5 (INS)—The designation of J. Ramsay MacDonald, Labor party chieftain, as premier to succeed Stanley Baldwin, belied a prophecy an old Scottish woman once made. She told Mr. MacDonald when he was but a boy that he would be premier once, "but not twice."

The historic event in King George's sickroom at Windsor Castle today elevates the Labor leader to the premiership for the second time. He headed the Labor government that came into power in 1924.

RADIO MAN IS HELD IN CLOSET DEATH CASE

Los Angeles, June 5 (AP)—Police today were confronted with what they termed a mysterious "triangle murder," the victim being a young Titian-haired woman.

Mrs. Virginia Patty, 28, comely wife of a wealthy Portland, Ore., broker, was beaten to death. Her body, skull crushed, was found hanging from a hook in a clothes closet by Mrs. M. W. O. Wilson, owner of an apartment.

SUSPECT ARRESTED

William Tallman, radio operator and alleged friend of the slain woman, was under arrest aboard the steamship Admiral Benson, which was en route today from Los Angeles to San Francisco.

When informed of the charge, Tallman was said to have appeared stunned. He told newspapermen he knew nothing about the murder as he had been on the ship during its run to San Diego yesterday at the time Mrs. Patty was believed to have been slain.

Mrs. Wilson told police the room where the body was found had been rented to "W. C. Johnson, of San Francisco." Mrs. Wilson went to change the linen in the apartment and discovered Mrs. Patty's body. Two halves of a brick were found. Strands of red hair and blood were on one piece of brick.

SAYS PROPAGANDA CHARGE ABSURD

Washington, June 5 (AP)—Replying to an article by Capt. D. W. Knox, U. S. N., retired, attributing the defeat of the 1927 naval bill to British and foreign propaganda, Mrs. Laura Puffer Morgan, associate secretary of the National Council for Prevention of War, today characterized the officer's assertion as "absurd."

Mrs. Morgan declared the Navy department to be "one of the greatest propaganda agencies in the United States."

"The church and peace groups who led the attack against the naval bill both last year and this are organized by American taxpayers and supported by them," she asserted.

WIFE ALSO TOOK THE FURNITURE

Not only did his wife, Mrs. Lois M. Chandler, desert him, Charles F. Chandler of Braintree testified today in Dedham Probate Court, but she backed a furniture van up to the door and took away the family's entire possessions.

Chandler testified his wife, who now lives in Gardner st., Allston, also harassed him. He declared that on one occasion while he was calling on a woman client in Wollaston, to whom he was attempting to sell bonds, his wife, accompanied by detectives, descended on the client's home.

City Hall was closed during the hour of the funeral as a mark of respect to the deceased. He was employed in the street department for 35 years. He is survived by his wife, a son and a daughter.

Row Over Boy

Joseph I. Eldridge, Jr., for whose custody over the week-end his wealthy Newton father is contesting. The parents are suing for divorce.

While the mother wept in opposition, Joseph I. Eldridge, wealthy Newton man, pressed today in Middlesex Probate Court a petition seeking custody of his eight-year-old son, Joseph I. Eldridge, Jr., over the week-end.

Mrs. Eldridge's tears fell during a bench conference with Judge Harris when William Hirsh, counsel for the father, produced a letter written by the boy. The father's cross-suit for divorce was heard recently.

The mother opposed the petition, she said, because the boy is not strong and she does not want him away over night. She declared she was willing the father should have him on Sunday.

Judge Harris took the petition under advisement.

London, June 5—Lloyd's has received a Yokohoma message saying the Japanese steamer "Uzo Maru" is believed to have been lost at sea from fire, the disaster including loss of a passenger list of 700 Russian passengers, of whom 380 were said to be women, and the ship's crew, numbering 43, the latter all Japanese. Fire on this boat began on May 28 off the east coast of Kamchatka.

Science Rips Veil Off Sly Crooks' Trails

Washington, June 5 (AP)—The Sherlock Holmes of tomorrow will not be a detective solving baffling mysteries by his own cleverness, but a scientific expert relying upon standardization methods of precise identification.

This prediction was made by Wilmer Souder of the bureau of standards in placing before the natural conference of weights and measures in the bureau's work with the problems of identification. The cunning criminal, who masks his face and gloves his hands, will find himself pitted against the cold scrutiny of supermicroscopes that will tear his identity from a typewritten document, a pistol ball, a cartridge or a signature.

In an effort to establish standards for its work, he explained, the bureau has taken up the problems of identification of written and typewritten documents, signatures, guns and bullets.

The slight defects and variations that distinguish one typewriter from another are susceptible to precision measurements, which, when analyzed by an expert, are sufficient to establish the identity of a machine.

Ballistic identifications, which have as their purpose the determination of the gun from which a certain bullet was fired, may be made by measurements and comparisons.

Marks left on a ball by the groove of a pistol barrel, the imprint of a firing pin and breech markings on a shell, rust spots and injuries to the inner surface of a barrel, he said, are all measureable traces.

Pawtucket's Old Mill Fund Has $86,000

HOOVER TO PICK G. O. P. LEADER

Washington, June 5 (INS)—President Hoover, as titular leader of his party, was confronted today with the task of finding another pilot to steer the Republican ship in next year's congressional elections.

Dr. Hubert Works' resignation as chairman of the Republican national committee took political Washington by surprise.

Theoretically, his successor will be chosen by the national committee; actually the chairman is selected by the President when the party is in power, and the committee solemnly ratifies the choice.

Ralph William of Oregon, now vice-chairman of the committee, and Representative Franklin Fort of New Jersey, James Francis Burke of Pennsylvania, general counsel for the national committee, and Claudius Huston of Tennessee, former Assistant Secretary of Commerce, were mentioned as possible successors to succeed Work in the fall.

PRAISE DALTON PRIZE PLAN FOR TEMPERANCE

The flood of commendatory comment on the Hearst Temperance Contest, and on the prize-winning suggestions for modification of the present prohibition law, continued to pour in today.

From the clergy, from professional men, from political leaders and from educators, come expressions of approval. Citizens of Greater Boston, and of the nation at large joined in the chorus of praise. Some of the commendations are:

JOHN F. FITZGERALD, former mayor—I think any temperance plan is better than the present state of affairs, and I think that Gen. Dalton's plan would improve the present conditions. Mr. Hearst is to be commended for directing public attention to the widespread disregard for law, and those who took the time and trouble to study the situation and suggest remedies are to be congratulated.

LEO BIRMINGHAM, Democratic floor leader, Massachusetts House of Representatives—To my mind, the Dalton plan for promoting temperance is much more satisfactory than the first prize plan of Justice Hoyt. While I do not agree with Gen. Dalton that the 18th Amendment cannot be repealed, his method would at least restore to the people a measure of the rights taken from them under the guise of an emergency war measure. The Dalton plan is bound to attract general approval because of its moderation. The Hearst contest will be undoubtedly a decided factor in bringing about the ultimate solution of the liquor question.

JOSEPH F. O'CONNELL, former Congressman and noted attorney: The plan suggested by Gen. Dalton to bring about temperance has many excellent points, especially his recommendation that the states regulate the sale and manufacture of intoxicating liquors, which I think will come about eventually, and the amount of alcohol to be permitted in the various liquors. I disagree with him in that I favor liquor, for that would make the price of drink higher with a consequent decrease in its use.

JULIAN CODMAN, Boston attorney and legal counsel for the Constitutional Liberty League: The Dalton plan is quite interesting, and deserving of careful study. But it strikes me, after a casual reading of the plan, that the suggestion to appoint a commission of seven members according to geographical divisions would not give the industrial centers and the urban population the representation that the problems of the city and the question itself deserve.

JEROME G. KERWIN, professor of political science, University of Chicago—The main value of the Hearst Temperance Plan Contest is that it brings to the people the fact that there are other ways to bring about temperance than by the Volstead law. To many people the word prohibition and Volstead were synonymous. This campaign of education will impress upon many that there are other pieces of legal machinery by which temperance can be achieved.

MRS. H. P. ALEXANDER, wife of steamship magnate and member of Seattle Park Board—The present prohibition laws are perfectly ridiculous and we are ashamed of them. Laws should be respected but they must first be laws we can respect. The great danger in the present situation is the growing disrespect for all law. I think the Dalton plan is one that will command respect and create a general effort to sustain it. It is workable and that is what we want. The Hoyt plan is also good. Either would make greater enforcement possible."

Quinlan Says He Joked With Wife About Plan

The fourth award in the Hearst $25,000 Temperance Prize Contest went to James B. Quinlan, Jr., of 1504 West Ramona Boulevard, Alhambra, Cal. He is 29 years old, a successful contractor, is married and has a 2-and-a-half-year-old daughter.

Quinlan was graduated from Stanford University two years ago and since that time has been actively engaged in business in the Alhambra section. He is not a professional writer and says that he has never indulged in other than mental speculation as to what could be made a successful substitute for prohibition.

Actively opposed to prohibition, he believes that either state supervision of alcoholic beverages, or government supervision similar to that now in force in Canada, would be the proper course for this country.

Much surprised that his plan had received consideration, he said:

"My wife and I joked about it when I wrote it, and it has been so long now since I sent it off that we had practically forgotten all about the matter."

U. S. Missionary in Escape From Chinese

Peking, China, June 5 (AP)—Official sources today said Dr. C. H. Holleman, American missionary captured and held for ransom by Communists at Lungyechow, southern Fukien, May 23, had escaped. A letter received at Amoy said after four days he eluded 200 brigands and started afoot toward Taplu, Kwangtung. Holleman's wife and children escaped capture originally and made their way to Amoy.

Temperance Plan No. 4 Recommends Referendum

The intent and purpose of the Eighteenth Amendment is to prohibit the use of intoxicating beverages to citizens of the United States and of territories under its jurisdiction. Its effect, as interpreted by the national prohibition act, or Volstead law, is to criminalize a great number of citizens by making unlawful that which is deemed harmless, if not used to excess.

Obviously, such a measure is in itself an abuse of power and inconsistent with the letter and spirit of the Constitution. Repudiation by the people is imperative. Orderly agitation to that end and substitution of appropriate legislation, based upon principles of justice and reason, are urgent.

Successful administration of the substituted measure depends upon adequate definition of state and federal authority. But the all-important problem is to secure concerted expression of the people on the subject, so that they may authorize change by Congress in unmistakable language.

Repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment is an impractical method of change (even if desired by a vast majority of the electorate). One thirty-sixth of the qualified voters in the 13 smallest states could prevent an amendment to the amendment. Yet a majority in four states, with a population four times that of the combined 13, have vigorously repudiated the existent national prohibition act.

There remains but one truly conceivable method of change. The Congress of the United States should modify the federal act to enforce the Eighteenth Amendment so that the same shall not prohibit the manufacture, sale, transportation, importation of beverages which are not in fact intoxicating as determined in accordance with the laws of the several states.

"Let all the people vote for the first time upon the measure as it stands. Make that vote mandatory on Congress. Let the definition of intoxicating beverages, a fanatical conceit under the existing law, become a matter for state determination and state administration. Let the state desiring radical prohibitive measures have them, but let it provide means of control from its own purse. Let the remaining states regulate personal habits and customs with a measure of tolerance based on experience.

Modification opens the way to self-determination by the respective states. Usurpation of power by the federal government in matters peculiarly adapted to state regulation and control tends to destroy the political identity of the individual state and to centralize authority in Washington. Federal jurisdiction is strictly limited to matters of general government, to interstate rather than intrastate business. The several states must cherish and preserve their political integrity.

The states, again sovereign in their reserved rights, may look to the experience of various countries which have tried prohibition and failed. Their adoption of temperance measures came in time to avert dangerous social upheavals. Their subsequent experiences in government control and regulation are models well worth serious consideration.

One troublesome obstacle remains. By what agency is the measure to be presented for a vote of the people? The Constitution explicitly provides for the emergency: The President of the United States, chief spokesman of the whole people, "shall from time to time give to the Congress information of the state of the Union and recommend to their consideration such measures as he shall judge necessary and expedient."

Recommendation in this national emergency clearly devolves upon him as a duty in the interest of public welfare. Unofficial but significant polls of the press upon this, a purely social issue, have persistently demonstrated the popular sentiment for change, essentially as herein expressed, by a vote of 5 to 1. But only through the President's official recommendation can Congress be induced to present the question for a vote of the people and thus receive the popular mandate.

This plan is founded upon the proposition that the right of individual free action, particularly as affecting eating and drinking within reasonable lawful limits, inheres as a right of every American citizen. The power to establish lawful bounds resides in the sovereignty of the several states and of the people. But the states may prescribe those bounds only within the sphere of sovereignty not expressly prohibited them by the Constitution.

It is based upon the conviction that temperance is a virtue which may be cultivated by example and instruction, but that appropriate laws, tolerantly conceived and judiciously administered, may serve to promote the desired end.

Enlightened public opinion expressed in law should represent the common political experience of a people at a moment in its road to freedom. All laws are experimental. They are in the making. They proceed by trial and error. Their ultimate success depends upon their adequacy in relation to human motives and actions, the degree of enlightenment of the people who make them, the efficiency and intelligence of the officials who administer them.

This plan, "a practical substitute for prohibition," suggests the first step toward "actual temperance conditions." Its adoption will automatically tend to correct and ultimately abolish existing evils and preserve the moral balance and political integrity of the nation. I respectfully submit it to the thoughtful consideration of the American people.

QUINLAN BUSY TWO MONTHS

By OTHEMAN STEVENS.

Los Angeles, June 5—James B. Quinlan, Jr., of Alhambra, was highly pleased when an Examiner representative handed him a check for $1000 as the fourth prize winner in the Hearst Temperance Contest.

"I have never before tried to write anything for the public," he said as he accepted the check.

"But about prohibition I have very decided thoughts.

"I was opposed to prohibition from the beginning of the experiment.

"I do not think the world is at all ready for such a method of attacking the problem of drink.

"This is not a passing thought, but is the result of study and investigation extending over several years.

"The essay for which I have received this check was not superficially done," Mr Quinlan said. "I worked over it for two months, formulating my thoughts, finding the result unsatisfactory, throwing it in the waste paper basket and going over the job again and again.

"Mrs. Quinlan and I joshed about the final essay, never dreaming that it would be given serious attention and after I put it in the mail, it dropped from my mind.

"Mr. Hearst has done a great public service in having this national expression of views about prohibition, for if is a tremendous question, one that directly affects every person in the country.

"Making so many people think about it, enabling so many people to give their ideas and having the rest of the world know what those ideas are, cannot fail to be an aid to the welfare of the country."

Quinlan lives at 1504 West Ramona boulevard, Alhambra. He is a native of Missouri, but since his early childhood has lived in four or more states, and been in four universities having to hop from one to another as his parents progressed westward.

He was a year at Kansas Univ., then two years in Colorado Univ., a year in the Univ. of Arizona, and finally put in his four years and graduated from Stanford, two years ago.

He took the course of political science at Stanford and when he stepped into the world he followed his father's example and became a house building contractor.

Federal infantry, protected by airplanes, attacked the rebel positions on a hill, Cerro Azul, using bombs and machine guns to advantage. Many rebels were killed, among them the chieftain, Isais G. Revilla.

COAKLEY, ON STAND, DENIES $25,000 DEBT

Daniel H. Coakley took the stand in federal court today to defend a $25,000 suit brought against him by the Equitable Bank & Trust Co. of Florida in connection with his alleged part in aiding Simon Swig to purchase controlling interest in the Tamiami Banking Co. of that state.

The Tamiami institution was taken over by the Florida bank commissioner in 1926 shortly after Mr. Swig had been elected to its directorate. Its assets were purchased and liabilities assumed by the Equitable Bank & Trust Co.

The plaintiff alleges Mr. Coakley made one note for $5000 and endorsed two notes for $10,000 each, all made payable to the president and treasurer of the defunct bank, and for which it is alleged he is liable.

Testimony for the plaintiff was offered by Atty. Robert G. Dodge in the form of depositions.

Mr. Coakley admitted having been involved in the transactions concerning the three notes, but denied he had been personally benefited. He asserted the notes were drawn as a favor to the Tamiami bank and as part of the proceedings undertaken by its two officers in connection with the sale of the bank stock to Simon Swig.

ELMER COOLBERTH SPANISH WAR VETERAN
EDWARD W. QUINN, MAYOR

LEARNING AND INDUSTRY GO HAND IN HAND IN UNIVERSITY CITY

By CARL MORRISON

Cambridge has a "singing mayor."

This is not merely because Mayor Edward W. Quinn, veteran of a quarter of a century of city service, sings the praises of his city as the third industrial community of the State.

Cambridge's singing mayor does exactly what the nickname implies. He has a strong, clear voice and is often in demand at concerts, clubs, etc.

The mayor has been in office a dozen years, preceded by an equal number of years in other city branches.

Well might the mayor sing the praises of his city, for it ranks only under Boston and Worcester industrially. Here was the home of the American Revolutionary army where Washington took command under the old elm. Ever since then Cambridge has been a center of learning and education.

Cambridge acquired its name after Harvard was located there, for people began to call the city by that name in association with old Cambridge in England.

The "singing mayor" is active in local, state and national politics. He has been national committeeman in the Democratic party for 12 years, and was an original "Al Smith man."

GUARDS MAYOR

Edward J. Comerford, veteran of 28 years in the police department, for the past 11 years has been assigned to the mayor's office as his "protector."

The mayor does not fear assault, but there are many uses for a policeman, especially when the hundreds of job-seekers get into action. This 76-year-old officer is a "radiophan."

Cambridge has a G. A. R. post in which only four members survive. Of these, but two are able to attend meetings out of an original membership of 438.

Francis J. O'Reilly is now commander of the post, and he presides over an audience of one other member. O'Reilly, who is in good health at 82 years, ran away from school at the age of 15 to enlist. He was "found out" and sent home, but soon was back in the ranks.

The veteran's hobby is campaigning for a monument of Lincoln on Cambridge Common.

Elmer J. Coolberth, a Spanish War veteran, who looks 20 years younger than his 60 years, holds the local record for office honors. He has been elected to 11 offices in the veterans' organization and is now historian and past commander of 170 members.

Coolberth has two hobbies. His first is trout fishing. The other is to secure a Spanish War monument for the city.

LAW HIS HOBBY

Walter G. Davis, 59, president of the Central Trust Co., and head of the Cambridge Industrial Association, is one of the key figures of the city. The industrial association has 1200 members, and is very aggressive for the advancement of Cambridge.

Mr. Davis began 25 years ago as office boy in the bank of which he is the chief officer. His hobby is studying law, and he became so interested that he attended a night school law class in 1919, while he was bank treasurer. In 1923 he passed the bar examinations.

The bank president has read every one of the several thousand decisions handed down in the past decade by the Massachusetts Supreme Court.

Michael Fitzgerald, superintendent of Cambridge's 30 schools, is a colorful figure in Massachusetts' educational circles. Like the bank president, he has studied law and passed the bar examinations.

KNOWS HIS VOTERS

J. Frank Facey, an old time printer, has been chairman of the board of election commissioners for 20 years. No one would think of removing this 66 year old veteran for he can almost carry the voting list in his mind.

He started in business with one small press in 1889. In those days a skating rink occupied the space on which his present building is located.

Dr. Harry C. Mohr, a city councillor and dentist, is the city's chief booster for the Central Square district. Dock's hobby is writing. He has contributed to several magazines. And they say it will be Mayor Mohr some day.

Like father, like son. This is what residents say about Fire Chief James Casey, who has been in the department for 40 years. His father was chief before him, and the son often wears the fire helmet used by his parent.

This chief presides over 196 firemen, and none of them is a "white collar man." He has 'em all trained as "smoke eaters," and keeps not a single call man on the payroll.

SWAMPSCOTT TOMORROW

1200 EMPLOYES MERRY AT BIG OUTING

More than 1200 employes of the Employers' Liability Assurance Corporation, Ltd., headed by a detail of police and two bands, left early today from the headquarters of the company in the Samuel Appleton building for Swampscott, where they are enjoying their annual outing at the New Ocean House.

The parade was very colorful, the 1200-odd marchers carrying gaudy colored paper shakers. The parade started at Battery march st. and moved over Kilby st. to State st. to Broad st., to Atlantic ave. to Rowe's wharf, where they boarded ferries for East Boston, where special trains on the Boston, Lynn & Revere R. R. awaited conveyed them to Lynn, from where special electric cars took them to Swampscott.

SHOE STRIKERS PARLEY WITH EMPLOYERS

Haverhill, June 5—A committee of seven, representing the Shoe Workers' Protective Union, was to confer today with the Haverhill Shoe Manufacturers' Association in an effort to bring back peace to the local shoe industry.

The new working agreement which the union is submitting to manufacturers will be the basis of the conference and the result will be reported at mass meetings of the seven locals to be called for next Friday, beginning at 8 a. m.

Under the new agreement the union wants a five-day week of 44 hours and the restoration of a 10 per cent cut to piece workers. The Mitchen Shoe Co. and the I. A. Jonas Shoe Co. both refused to sign the agreement last Saturday, with the result that their 700 employes were called out on strike.

TOOK SON AND DOG; MRS. CARR IS EXTRADITED

New York, June 5 (AP)—Mrs. Helen Cressman Carr, former stage and screen actress, now the wife of Alexander Carr, actor, was turned over to Connecticut authorities today to face charges of abducting her eight-year-old son and stealing a dog.

She was arrested on complaint of Paul Gugger of New Haven, Mrs. Carr's first husband. He charged that she secretly took their son, Paul Gugger, Jr., from his home and at the same time took along a Chow named Tao.

Counsel for Mrs. Carr said that an attempt would be made to prevent extradition by securing a writ of habeas corpus. Mrs. Carr was accompanied to court by her husband, but the boy was not with them. When she was first arraigned the child sat in an ante-room reading a newspaper comic section, apparently unaware of the stir caused about him.

The dog was said to have been returned to Gugger, a detective facing it from Mrs. Carr when he met her walking with it on the street.

6 HURT IN AUTO COLLISIONS

North Adams, June 5 (AP)—Six persons were injured, two of them seriously, in an unusual series of collisions today in which four automobiles were involved. All of the injured reside here.

Harmon Melcher, 23, was internally damaged and Harry Levy, 45, had a fractured leg as well as internal injuries.

Others injured, less seriously, were: Hyman Levy, 17, son of Harry Levy; George Barnard, 50, and his wife, Louise, 47, William H. Walton, 30.

Walton, driver of the automobile which police charge was responsible, was arrested on charges of driving while under the influence of liquor and endangering life.

According to police, Melcher's car ran out of gasoline. He stopped. Barnard drove his car in ahead of Melcher's to give him a tow. Harry Levy, a friend of both men, stopped his car in front of Barnard's. Walton, police said, drove his car into Melcher's, causing the three parked automobiles to collide.

When the Walton car struck Melcher, Barnard and Melcher were fixing a tow rope between their machines. They were caught between the two machines. Levy was about to leave his car and was struck by a door of the machine.

CASSLER BOY TO SEE DEATH SCENE

Valparaiso, Ind., June 5 (AP)—Apparently more concerned over the imminent end of her adopted son, Edward, and his visit today to the murder scene, than over the fact that for the second time in three years she is formally charged with murder, Mrs. Catherine Cassler of Chicago today restlessly awaited the outcome of further questioning in the death of Miss Camesia Soutar.

Mrs. Cassler is charged with shooting Miss Soutar, 24, professional skater, and hiding her body in a marsh near Hebron.

FLAG WINNERS VISIT WEST POINT

West Point, N. Y., June 5—Yesterday was by far the biggest in the experience of the 36 flag champions and their escorts on the patriotic pilgrimage that they are making under the auspices of the United States Flag Association. The highlight of today's program was the champions' visit to West Point Military Academy.

It was to be expected that the reception and parade at the United States military academy would thrill these youngsters.

But the 36 flag champions were impressed by the spectacle of the cadet corps on parade and it seems to say that Col. Moss was deeply moved would be a mild expression of what must have been his emotions as he stood on the very parade grounds where he as cadet received his first military training and saw those splendid American boys go through their regular afternoon drill. It was the most significant session upon the pilgrimage today.

Here at West Point in 1898, 31 years ago, the seed of inspiration for this great nation-wide patriotic movement which was taken the form of a flag contest, was sown when young James A. Moss, of Lafayette, La., entered his great military university to receive from his government an education that has made him an outstanding character in the military affairs of the nation.

The flag contest in which these 4 boys and girls from various parts in the United States have won regional championships is the outgrowth of Col. Moss' desire to pay to his flag and his government in some small measure the debt of gratitude that he has felt for the wonderful opportunity and education that his government afforded him. The flag champions had attention just to the rear of the reviewing stand upon the parade ground passing before

The early part of the day was devoted to a trip to the battlefields of Saratoga. Upon the arrival of the Flag Champion Special at Albany, the party drove to the De Witt Clinton hotel for breakfast, after which the drive to Saratoga was made in deluxe motor coaches, in the site of the famous battle of Saratoga, one of the most decisive of the Revolutionary War, the Flag champions inspected the museum, monuments, home of Benedict Arnold and heard the guides describe the attack of the Hessian troops on the position of the Continental soldiers at this point. The party then returned to Albany where lunch was served and immediately thereafter again boarded the "Flag Champion Special" for Peekskill, N. Y., there to go in motor buses over the famous Bear Mountain route to West Point.

Await Beacon Hill Flower Show

THE deft touch of feminine fingers has metamorphosed the garden and clubhouse of the Women's City Club of Boston into riotous beauty and exotic floral fragrance for the Friday flower show.

This is the club's seventh annual show. It is usually the most important date on the calendar for hundreds of members and their friends.

The stone front of 46 Beacon st. will be spic and span, prim and proper. But within the portals throughout the clubhouse and in the garden beyond will bloom flowers of new loveliness, design and color and exquisite lustre.

The spell of the flowers will write their own passport for this day and the attendants will bask in the charm of such profusion.

Mrs. Robert Cushman, whose Beacon Hill garden is one of the beauty spots on the Hill, is chairman of the committee in charge.

Seven classes of entries are to be shown and awards accordingly. In the Twentieth Century Club at 2:30 p. m. Dr. Henry Turner Bailey of Cleveland, O., will lecture on "The Classic in Flowers."

Following the lecture members and their friends will return to the clubhouse for tea, during which the Farragut Trio will entertain with musical selections.

The honor of flowers include those of the picture, mantel, house decoration and out of door garden. Paul Pissot, Fletcher Steele and Morris Carter are the judges.

The President's bowl, presented to the club last year by Mrs. Lorenze F. Mutner, will be awarded to the winner of the most distinguished exhibit for one year. Prizes have been donated by Mrs. Lucian Ryce, Mrs. Frank A. Bourne, Mrs. Austin, Mrs. Ropes, Mrs. J. Franklin McElwain, Mrs. Robert Cushman and Mrs. Cyrus S. Kauffman. Club members assisting Mrs. Cushman on the details are Mrs. Howard L. Rogers, Mrs. Charles L. Norton, Mrs. Caroline S. Ropes, Mrs. Edgar J. Smith, Mrs. Ralph W. Dunbar, Mrs. Bryan S. Permar and Mrs. Walter Austin. The garden show will be open at 12:30.

AMERICAN HOME MAKERS

What to do in the hot weather? At this time of the year this becomes a problem of huge proportions, particularly for one who must stay at home, but who wants out-door recreation, just the same.

Miss Katharine Crosby, editor of "The Bostonian," will discuss just such a timely subject tomorrow at 2:30 at the American Home Makers, 82 Beacon st. The lecture is to be part of the regular monthly program of the Boston Home Industries Section, of which Mrs. Jessie J. Storrow is chairman.

Miss Crosby has explored the unknown and unexpected opportunities for recreation in the city and is prepared to impart such valuable information to her listeners tomorrow.

Dr. Jan T. Eyhouwer of Amsterdam, Holland, field worker for the Massachusetts committee of better homes in America, will introduce Miss Crosby.

ANNUAL MEETINGS

And still there remain a few more clubs who have yet to hold annual meetings and election of officers. They are the Young Woman's Club of Winthrop, the Groveland Woman's Club and the "Bright Ideas" Club of Boston, which meets in the South Bay Union. On Friday the Shrewsbury Woman's Club will hold theirs.

THE JUNIOR FRIDAY CLUB OF QUINCY

Today the Junior Friday Club of Quincy is holding an all-day lawn party at the summer home of Mrs. Henry E. Porter, North Scituate. Miss Etta M. Prescott is the new president of the juniors. Next season the study for the women is to deal with "modern biographies." Mrs. James H. Slade is the newly elected vice-president, and Mrs. Charles L. Beavey will serve as secretary-treasurer. The program committee includes Mrs. Walter L. Sargent, Mrs. Perry Lawton and Mrs. George W. Abele.

GENERAL FEDERATION

A few more outstanding achievements of the General Federation of Women's Clubs in other states that can be emulated by the Bay State clubs, as reported by directors at the biennial council meeting.

IDAHO—The little town of Castleford was new and poor and struggling. It had many churches, cliques and objects of betterment, but was not progressing. Then came the "Everywoman's Club" and was instrumental in seeing brought to realization a community church and social center. Mrs. Fred Pittinger of Boise told about this "miracle."

KANSAS—Mrs. Jonathan B. Carter of Wilson said that this state has the best laws of any in the Union concerning the rights of women and children. The 17,000 clubwomen, she said, feel partially responsible for placing those laws on the statute books. She also said that Kansas has the largest scholarship fund in the Union and has a large music talent fund.

LOUISIANA—The illiteracy Campaign was the figment of the fertile imagination and keen intellect of the women of this state. Mrs. Arthur M. Arthur of Jennings, told about. According to the census, Louisiana stands lowest in abysmal ignorance. Before this year closes, Mrs. Arthur prophesied, "you will find her on the honor roll of great achievement."

NATIONAL WOMAN'S PARTY

Mrs. Alice Lee West Movius, state chairman of the Massachusetts branch, of the National Women's Party, in a broadcast talk, celebrating the 10th anniversary of the passage of the Woman Suffrage amendment, pleaded for equal rights for men and women throughout the world.

She said in part:

"Women are still struggling against inequalities economically, industrially, politically and professionally. Today our women teachers are still struggling for equal pay for equal work.

"Women are being tried by juries entirely made up of men. Would a man want to be tried by a jury composed entirely of women?

"Industrially we have equally glaring examples of discrimination against women.

"This organization is not a political one, the speaker said. It is partly devoted to working for the passage of the Equal Rights Amendment now before Congress.

"The cost of living is based on the scale of men's wages and not on women's, which are admittedly lower. But I ask if any woman ever has been given lower rent, lower prices on her food or lower prices on any necessity because her wage is lower?

"Women's wages are regulated by law, men's wages are regulated by their unions."

Says Tunney May Take Up Writing

Hartford, Ct., June 5 (AP)—Gene Tunney may try his hand at creative work in the literary field, it was intimated today by Mrs. Edwin S. Dewing, sister of the former champion's wife, the former Polly Lauder of Greenwich. She made this allusion upon her return to West Hartford today following a two months' visit with Mr. and Mrs. Tunney at Brioni, Italy.

"He is of course very interested in literature and spends a great deal of his time reading," said Mrs. Dewing. "It may be that some day he will put something down that he thinks is good and show it to a publisher."

The Inside Story of the Lindbergh-Morrow Match

HOW would you like to know Lindbergh as he really is—to know what goes on behind those blue, fearless eyes, that smiling inscrutable face? What was there about Anne Morrow that stirred the heart that beautiful women by the thousands have failed to touch? Read "THE COLONEL'S LADY" and you will know. An intimate accurate picture of Lindbergh, written by a woman who has known him since he was fourteen and who speaks with authority on his match with Miss Morrow.

The Greatest Issue of the Magazine for Young Women

Smart Set is the gay, entertaining, up-to-the minute magazine that helps young women make the most of themselves.

The brilliant July issue is printed in color, brimming with the best fiction money can buy, and packed with more than a thousand hints on how to improve your beauty, intelligence, style, and personality.

6 masterly short stories—5 great novels —10 brilliant special features—3 touching poems—8 expert articles dealing with every problem of the young woman of today.

Note just a few of them below.

Why I Masqueraded 6 Years as a Man

The intimate day-by-day adventures told by herself of Mrs. Valerie Arkell Smith who, as swashbuckling "Capt. Barker," fooled the world for six years.

What prompted this aristocratic, high-strung girl to hide her sex and assume the weird role of a man? How was she able to dupe soldiers with whom she fought, lovers who adored her — even the woman she married — into believing she was a man?

She bares her soul and tells all in "WHY I MASQUERADED AS A MAN." You have never read a story like it — the most amazing human document ever printed.

The Passion that Poisoned a Queen

For her Sir Walter Raleigh flung his coat in the mud. Dukes, Lords, Prime-Ministers, and Generals fell like chaff before the whirlwind of her personality. Her name? Queen Elizabeth the Great. But mark this—she never had a happy love affair in her life. Her besetting sin and her unquenchable passion was jealousy—and it defeated her. For every woman who is in love there is a great lesson in "THE WOMAN WHO NEVER DAVE," a remarkable biography written by Adele Rogers St. John.

Why Marion Talley Renounced Fame at Twenty-Two

The world could not understand why this lovely opera star kicked fame into the discard at the very pinnacle of her success. Here she tells why. She wanted a beach and a ukulele instead of an opera stage and the plaudits of millions. She wanted to be herself instead of a celebrity. As fascinating a life story as you will ever read.

One Hundred Hints for the Mid-Summer Wardrobe

How would you like to look Paris-dressed on a very small expenditure? You can do it. Smart Set has devoted more than 40 pages to the discussion of chic and daring bathing suits, afternoon and evening gowns, hats, slippers, and scarves.

Would You Marry A Poet?

Peggy did—and got fired from her job for doing so, and he was the world's worst poet at that. Virginia Lee has written a romantic tale, a funny tale, in "THE BARD OF THE HARD HEART."

"When a job depends on new-looking clothes"

"Perhaps other girls would like this hint from a real-life story . . . Since coming to Hollywood as one of many 'extra' girls, I have had to make every penny count. My clothes are my most precious possessions! So every night I go over my wardrobe, washing each thing that is a bit wilted in Lux.

"Sometimes I have had to save on breakfasts—but never on Lux—that is an essential . . . Again and again I've been complimented on my lovely new clothes. And I've gotten any number of jobs, I know, because my clothes look nice—thanks to Lux."

SHIRLEY DORMAN,
Hollywood, Cal.

Every great Movie Studio uses Lux!

Not only "extras" but stars—all the great movie studios, with million-dollar wardrobes to care for, use Lux! They find by scientific tests that pretty clothes, whether of sheer or sturdier materials—can actually be kept new looking twice as long with Lux! "For dollars and cents' reasons," they say, "we don't dare risk using anything but Lux."

Thrilling Six-Day Novel by a Noted Author

WHAT HAS HAPPENED SO FAR

Felicity Strake, nineteen and beautiful the Newport girl, born to riches in ultra exclusive society circles, is the pawn in a scheming mother's plan to marry her to one of seven very rich men. Felicity refuses Archie Lessington, one of the seven. She meets Haley Robinson, an artist, and is attracted to him. By accident she meets Nick Trenchard, the most eligible of the marriageable list. Nick falls in love with her and proposes, but Felicity tells him she doesn't love him. Felicity's father returns to Newport, bringing with him Jacob Gram, and Felicity is annoyed by his bluntness. Felicity overhears a quarrel between her father and mother and learns that Gram wants to get into society. She interrupts a conversation and finds her mother furious.

By GILBERT ROGERS

CHAPTER 3

MRS. STRAKE waved Jellison away.

"Imagine it," she burst out, "that man your father brought here, that Gram person, has bought a saddle horse and tried to make a gift of it to you - - - I'm speechless."

But Mrs. Strake's wrath was mitigated a little later when Gram appeared with her husband.

He spoke coldly to Mrs. Strake. "I have just learned from private sources that Prince Karl was to be with you for all of next week. And that the engagement has been cancelled. If you should still care to have him as your guest, I think I can arrange it."

"You?" Mrs. Strake exclaimed.

"If I may have the use of your phone."

He did not wait for any answer. Felicity heard Gram talking a foreign language now sharply, decisively, as a man gives orders.

Felicity tiptoed to the landing and heard Gram say to her mother:

"It is arranged. Prince Karl will come to you."

"You—you really mean—"

"It is not difficult to understand in Europe the bankers own the Princes. I have the good luck to own several bankers."

Mrs. Strake's voice sounded strained. "Then I am certainly in your debt. I—I thank you very much."

Luncheon was not the ordeal she had expected. But now and then she would feel Gram's eyes on her face.

Mr. Strake volunteered the news that Gram was buying the Hedges Place, one of the most elaborate in the colony.

That evening, when Felicity was saying good-by to her father at the dark pier, Gram whispered: "I am coming back to you. We will see much of each other, you and I." His voice had been calm, but he stated a fact that nothing could prevent.

Mrs. Strake was occupied with the impending visit of Prince Karl. She was to go to New York, be presented there, and later perhaps by escort her royal guest and his retinue to Newport.

On the eve of her mother's departure she heard her talking to Graves, the maid, secretary and faithful spy.

Mrs. Strake was saying in her

CHILDREN HOMELESS IN FIRE

West Haven, Ct., June 5 (AP)—Their mother dead, their father away, 11 children, one of the ill, were homeless here today, a fire having destroyed their $3500 home, built with the savings of elder sisters and brothers.

A man who was so eager to report the fire that he forgot to give its location was blamed for the delay of firemen in reaching the scene. Poor water pressure hampered the fire-fighting and the building went down, a mass of ruins.

Lucy Fordoro, 25, oldest in the family, was sitting downstairs talking to a friend when she heard a passerby call "Fire!" She ran upstairs, saw the roof was ablaze, and carried her sister, Anita, 18, who was ill in bed, to the street, waking the others as she ran.

A neighbor telephoned the fire department, but was so excited he forgot to give the Fordoro address. The call had to be traced before the location could be ascertained and firemen were too late to save the home.

JOBLESS DEMAND WORK OF MAYOR

A misconstrued report from City Hall that Mayor Nichols was having difficulty in obtaining 100 summer-job laborers at $5 a day, sent a rush of the jobless to the mayor's office today.

Two of the applicants for the supposedly open places, Stephen Whelan and Festy Connolly, both of Rowan ct., Jamaica Plain, walked all the way from home.

When informed that they could not take the city jobs anyway because they were not on the civil service list, the two men hastened to the State House to take out civil service applications.

According to Mayor Nichols, the story in a morning paper relative to his having difficulty in getting 100 laborers was due to a misunderstanding.

Of 170 names submitted to him by the Civil Service Commission, he said, he will easily get 100 men and has most of them now.

WIFE-BEATER OUT FOR MAYOR'S JOB

James O'Brien of Silver st., South Boston, was sentenced in South Boston district court today to serve two months at Deer Island for having fisticuffs with his wife.

O'Brien appeared before Judge William Day, carrying a broken broomstick as a cane and wearing a pink in his coat lapel.

The probation officer announced that O'Brien had completed a four months' sentence at Deer Island four days ago for a like offense—assault and battery on his wife.

O'Brien pleaded with Judge Day not to send him away, as he intends to run for mayor this year and he needs all his time to get his political organization going. He appealed.

2 DIE SUDDENLY IN HUB TODAY

Two men died suddenly in Boston today, both apparently from natural causes, although medical investigations are being made.

Abraham Levine, 58, married, of Quincy pt., Dorchester, dropped dead at work as cigar maker at 29 Shawmut ave. Angelo Trovato, 53, of Kennebec st., Mattapan, was found dead in bed at his home, by Lorenzo Birshini and Miss Rosalie Trovato of Somerville, his sister, was notified.

Slights Wife and Babe, Gets Prison

Van H. Burns, 32, formerly of Winthrop, was given a sentence of one year in the House of Correction and fined $200 by Judge Butterick in the Suffolk Superior Court, on charges of neglect of his wife, Elizabeth, and abandonment of his minor daughter, Helen.

More than eight years ago Burns was brought into court on the same charges and later disappeared. He was recently arrested in a Commonwealth-ave. house.

The Curious Quizzer

Dorchester Folk Answer His Daily Question and Pose for Pictures

THE QUESTION

Do you think the movement for a five-day week for salaried employes should be encouraged or discouraged?

MRS. STEPHEN L. REARDON, Boston st.—To give the working man who spends six days every week at the same kind of work the extra day would be a good thing for him and for his family. But if the employer allows only pay for five days, I think the difference in the pay envelope would be felt greatly when a man with a family tries to meet the household expenses. There is a movement now being discussed by a big concern in New York, I understand, by which the employes will work only five days a week, but it is proposed by the firm that employes when the change is made, will lose their vacations to make up for the lost weekly time.

MRS. JOHN J. DANAHY, Dorchester ave.—The five-day week at the same pay he is now paid for six days would bring more happiness for the salaried man. I think he would do better work, while on the job, and that economically the firm hiring him would be as well off, because the same amount of work would be accomplished by contented employes. If only five days' pay is allowed, unless the salaried man earns more than $60 a week, I am sure there will be small chance of his asking for the shorter week. It takes all a salaried man makes as it is, without trying to lessen the amount by working one day a week less. I think the five-day a week plan a good one.

WILLIAM J. O'MALLEY, Humphreys st.—For years I was a shoe worker in Lynn, and for men in that line of business I think the five-day a week rule should be enforced. Men in shoe shops are confined in close quarters where the conditions are not conducive to the best health. Many young men now employed in all kinds of factories are overworked, and they show their weakened condition in their pale faces. If they worked only five days every week I am sure they would not only be healthier but they would have time for some enjoyment. If the proposed new and shorter week goes into effect the ones now doing six days will do just as good work and as much in five days.

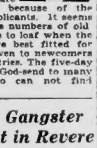
EDWIN S. McLEAN, Faulkner st.—The reason I am in favor of a five-day week is that it would give a chance to the unemployed who are looking for jobs. There are not as many positions vacant now as there were a few years ago. The five-day week idea should be pushed forward and a great many of our citizens would then be in positions they are now deprived of because of the over-supply of applicants. It seems too bad that large numbers of old time citizens have to loaf when the positions they are best fitted for are oftentimes filled by newcomers from foreign countries. The five-day week would be a God-send to many unfortunates who can not find work.



STARTS FOR CLEVELAND WITH WIFE

Planning to arrange for securing the $2,000,000 fortune left him by his father, John Woods Meyers of 128 Beacon st., well known leather man, has gone to Cleveland, O., with his wife. They will return at the end of the week.

The will was filed in a Cleveland probate court this week and makes the Boston man the only beneficiary after $10,000 is paid to Miss Linda E. White. She was for many years maid and nurse for the family.

Mr. Meyers and his wife and two children have lived at the Beacon street address for several years. He is president of the Atlantic Leather Co. on High st.

The fortune includes about $1,231,000 left in trust funds, as well as "not less than $200,000" in the family estate and more than another $100,000 in real estate holdings. Several hundred thousand dollars in various holdings are understood to be involved.

Mrs. John Meyers is prominent in Boston social circles and has been active in many charities and musicales.

The parents of the Boston man were Mr. and Mrs. Harry Eugene Meyers, who belonged to one of Cleveland's pioneer families.

2 PLANES TUNED UP IN MAINE

By ARTHUR QUINN

Boston Evening American Correspondent.

Old Orchard Beach, Me., June 5—With weather over the mid-Atlantic reported steadily clearing, the crews of the monoplanes, Green Flash and Yellow Bird, are ready for a hop-off which they hope may be possible tomorrow morning.

The three French fliers, bound for Paris, and the two Yanks, with Rome as their destination, were collaborating with each other in tuning engines and studying meteorological charts.

The Green Flash, carrying Pilot Roger Q. Williams and Navigator Lewis A. Yancey, made a two-hour test flight from the beach, reaching an altitude of 9000 feet. The fliers met all kinds of weather conditions, including snow, sleet, rain and lightning, and reported that their plane performed perfectly. No further tests are planned for the Flash.

Williams and Yancey were hosts at the Old Orchard Golf and Country Club to the crew of the Yellow Bird plane, Jean Assolant and Rene Le Fevre. Yancey spoke of the esteem and respect which the American crew of the Green Flash had formed since their stay here for their rivals in the coming transatlantic hops. He then presented them a small American flag, the gift of newspapermen, covering the start of the flights.

Assolant responded for the French fliers and Le Fevre also spoke briefly in French. It is planned to pin the flag on the inside of the cabin door of the Yellow Bird, where it will be the first thing seen when the plane comes to earth in Paris.

Al Mello, Worth $50,000, to Quit Ring Until October

NERVES ARE IN SHAKY CONDITION

By JACK CONWAY

AL MELLO, New England welterweight and middleweight champion, doesn't intend to retire merely because he was knocked out in six rounds by Gorilla Jones, according to Manager Bobby Goldman.

Goldman announced today that Mello will rest until October when he will resume operations in the ring. He asserted that Al has had a nervous breakdown and that it will require a long layoff to restore him to fighting spirit.

"The nerves of Mello's arms went back on him some time ago," said Goldman. "He would tire after two or three rounds of boxing. Lately Mello looked bad against Jones. He was lacking in fire and spirit, while in spite he appeared dull. This nervous condition has been had gone back on him."

Perhaps it would have been better judgment for me to have called off the Jones bout in view of Al's poor physical condition. But we had signed for the tussle and Mello has always gone through with his agreements regardless of his physical condition."

ASKED what was the extent of Mello's ring savings, Goldman declared the Lowell youth has a home in Lowell worth $10,000 and that he also has $40,000 in cash.

"Mello has saved most of his money," said Goldman. "He lives quietly and when he decides to quit the boxing game he will not have to look for any benefit.

"Mello is only 22 years of age and I cannot believe he is through as a fighter. What he needs is a rest. He has had four tough fights this year, two with Dundee and two with Jones. In fact, all of Al's fights have been hard ones. He has had to battle the best of them to get the big purses. He has earned a rest, but he hasn't tested the sponge to be any means.

"When Mello went down in the sixth round in the Jones bout, it was more from exhaustion than from the power of the blow. He was all tired out, while his nerves had snapped on him."

How Title Was Brought Back to White Race Is Told by Tad

A RIGHT, TO THE JAW, PUT KANSAS ON THE MAP—MADE GALVESTON A BACKNUMBER—AND CROWNED A NEW

For 30 years "Tad" T. A. Dorgan, one of the greatest cartoonists and sporting authorities that ever lived, covered the "fight" game. Shortly before his death "Tad" wrote and illustrated a series of stories describing in his inimitable style those ring battles which for thrills and sensational ko's were grouped indelibly in his mind. These reminiscences deal not only with fights in which titles were at stake, but with thrilling affairs staged in private and at the smaller clubs. This story is one of the stories.

By TAD

Kansas was put on the map on April 5, 1915.

A big, burly farmer from Pottawatomie County was on that day crowned the heavyweight champion of the world.

Jack Johnson, of Galveston, Texas, the master boxer, kidder and hitter dropped his crown in the twenty-sixth round at Havana, Cuba, to what he considered the softest thing in his career.

The result was an awful shock to those "in the know," but championship battles in which titles change hands usually are.

Assuming that everything was perfectly on the level in that fight, Jess Willard proved himself to be a real champion. The big black used every trick he knew from the start. He kidded the lumbering Kansan, belted him with both hands, made him miss worse than a raw amateur and balled him all up, yet he was unable to shove one across that was good enough to drop the challenger of his title.

It was all Johnson for 18 of the first 20 rounds. The end came in sight in the 25th round, when Willard reached the stomach with two lefts. Jess opened this round with a rush that carried Johnson off his feet. Into a corner the men struggled while in a clinch, and Willard sank his left into the colored man's body just before ordered to break by Referee Welch. Another rush and a right to the jaw made Johnson clutch frantically at his opponent in an effort to clinch again, but before he could get hold of the Kansan Jess slammed another left to the body and the colored man was in dire distress.

After the break Johnson kept out of harm's way for a minute and then rallied. But Willard was too strong for him. He rushed Johnson away when he tried to clinch, and then whipped across a hard right to the jaw which staggered the colored man, but Johnson's marvelous defense came to his aid and he managed to smother many a well directed punch and was still on his feet at the bell.

When the gong rang for the 26th round Johnson didn't get up from his chair until pushed up by his handlers. He stood in his corner until Welch sharply ordered him to come out and fight. Weakly he started towards the centre of the ring.

He was met by Willard before he had taken two steps. He flashed his golden smile as the white man approached, but underneath it there was a serious look. In avoiding the rush he backed into Willard's corner and his big black arms flashed in a tired effort to ward off the blows he saw coming.

Willard swung for the stomach. The blow landed and Johnson, badly hurt, fell into a clinch. As he looked over Willard's shoulder he caught his wife's eye and, knowing that he was about to be put out, signalled to her to leave the arena. Mrs. Johnson at once got up and was on her way out when Willard pulled back his right fist and shot it true and fast to John son's jaw. The colored man fell to the floor flat on his back in Willard's corner. His arms were over his chest and his gloves covered his face.

Referee Welch started the count at once and Willard stepped away. While Welch was counting the fatal ten with the official timekeeper Johnson remained as immovable as a stone man.

Then the referee stepped around Johnson and grabbed Willard's brawny arm, which he raised high in the air, proclaiming him the new champion.

Johnson was dragged to his corner and his seconds brought him around and he was able to leave the ring. He was still staggering as he walked through the rows of spectators to the dressing quarters, and as the fallen champion staggered along he was reviled by the thousands about the ringside. Even some of the women seized the opportunity to tell the colored man that they were glad he had been beaten.

RED CHAPMAN AND SPENCER IN BATTLE

"Red" Chapman, veteran Chelsea featherweight, will hit the comeback trail tomorrow night when he will meet Wee Willie Spencer of New York in a 10-round bout at the opening show of the Cycle A. C. at the Revere cycle track.

The bout will be one of the features of a card which comprises 10 scheduled rounds of boxing.

Chelsea will turn out in full force to greet its red-headed warrior. A band has been hired and hundreds of Chapman enthusiasts, headed by his old trainer, Al Lacey, will march to the cycle track behind a band.

The night promises to be a gala one for the new organization. Mayor Andrew A. Canessa and the other members of Revere's governing body have accepted the invitation of the club to attend its inaugural show, and Revere, Salem, Lynn, Beverly, Gloucester and other cities and towns on the North Shore are expected to turn out strongly in support of a club which promises to become an institution before the summer is over.

In the featured 10-rounder, Jack Gagnon, hard-hitting Allston heavyweight will meet Italian Jack Herman of New York while the third 10-rounder is a North Shore "natural" between Mickey Sears of East Boston and Buddy Clark, Salem welterweight.

Gagnon rules a slight favorite to beat Herman, but the dope has been upset so often in the past few months that it would be no surprise if Herman should punch his way to a victory. Herman has whipped Bob Mills, Pietro Corri, and Johnny Greeson in recent weeks, and he arrived here confident of whipping Gagnon.

The Buddy-Clark-Mickey Sears battle is expected to be a free-punching affair.

Louis Zizzo, Revere cave-man, will box Tony Mazzo of the North End in a six-rounder.

Handicap Brought "Gun" Back to Golf

By BILL GRIMES

FOR the past three years, friends, and especially his fellow members at the Woodland Golf Club, have been doing everything possible to revive Jesse Guilford's interest in golf.

But they failed.

After years of championship and competitive golf, during which time he became one of the outstanding golfers of the world, through winning the United States amateur title as a member of the Waller Cup team, and his success in Massachusetts amateur and open championship, Jesse Guilford simply lost his taste for the game.

Regardless of the entreaties of his friends, "The Gun" refused to respond. The kick was gone. He played in various state championships but did not have the punch necessary to bring success and return of fame.

Just when the prediction that Jesse Guilford was all through as a championship threat was becoming the topic of general conversation in golfing circles, the handicap committee of the Massachusetts Golf Association raised "The Gun's" handicap to one.

That did the trick.

FROM the day and hour that Jesse Guilford was informed that he was no longer a scratch man, his interest in golf started to return. His tail went up and he started to go, until now he is the open champion of Massachusetts for the second time.

Just as soon as the snow was off the ground this spring, Jesse Guilford began preparations for his comeback. He was out whacking balls up and down the fifth fairway at Allerton before that course was open. Where in the past he had broken hundreds of golf appointments, he began to call up his friends and date himself up for rounds. He put in hours practicing, something he has not done in years.

Also, for the first time in many seasons, he displayed interest in four ball matches, playing not only for Woodland, but also for Albemarle.

IN JULY, 1919, Jesse Guilford lost his state amateur title to his friend and clubmate, Francis Ouimet at the Winchester Country Club, and therefore he was in a bad mood for the professionals who were seeking the open championship in September of that year at Worcester. Mike Brady, the defending champion at Worcester, finishing in a tie for second place with John Cowen and Louis Tellier, three strokes behind the long hitter from Woodland. It was the first time that an amateur had ever won the Massachusetts open and until "The Gun" came through at the top yesterday at Vesper, the professionals had a corner on the title.

Although Guilford's victory at Vesper is the best piece of good fortune he has had in five years, he is not satisfied. He is going to Worcester next Monday and he will be one of the seven who qualify from this district for the United States open, and later this month he will battle the cream of the golfing world for Johnny Farrell's title at Winged Foot.

Hub Golfers Protest Crowded Links

By GEORGE W. GRIMM

AN EVER growing army of golfers, who do not like the idea of paying the current high fees of private golf courses, wonder just how soon the city of Boston is to relieve the situation by the construction of another public course.

Franklin Park, the only municipal course in Greater Boston, which cost $10 a year for residents of the city to join is very much overcrowded. The golfers have to wait for hours on Saturday, Sunday and holidays to get a chance to play 18 holes on the beautiful links.

All the players admit that the course is great and kept in fine condition. Those who have played many other public courses in the country say that the Franklin Park course is the equal of any public layout in the U. S. However, they do protest the long wait for an opportunity to play a game of golf.

FOR example, on Sunday last 271 golfers were at Franklin Park and they had to jam their golf into four hours, which according to law, between 2 p. m and 6 p. m.

This means that the golf professional at the park, Joe Howe, who is very efficient, has to send away a foursome every five minutes in order to take care of all the lovers of the game who hold season permits or pay the Saturday, Sunday and holiday fee of $3.

In order to accommodate all this jam of players, Joe Howe has to use five tees for starting. Picking out tees 3, 7, 11, 14 and 17 a four some gets away from each tee every five minutes and affords the players an opportunity to play their full 18 holes.

The park commission admits there is a congestion, but there is little or no chance of remedy.

Last year 51,869 registered and played at Franklin Field, paying into the park department $51,869.

Staggering White Sox Arrive for Four-Game Series

CARRIGANS MAY CLIMB UP NOTCH

By NICK FLATLEY

THE RED SOX are confronted by a chance to scramble out of the American League cellar. They will have to perform a baseball miracle, for them, and lick the Chicago White Sox four straight games. But the chances is there, just the same. A Chisox cleanup would find the natives anchored in seventh place Saturday night.

Boston fans, despondent at the recent habits of the Red Sox, have failed to observe that the Chicago outfit has been staggering just as badly. Lena Blackburn has not been able to get his gang going. His team looks good on paper, but not that way on the field.

The Carrigans seem to fold up whenever they get stacked against fairly good pitching of the steady variety. Bill Narleski is the one member of the outfit who is hitting hard and often, and he cannot grind out runs all by himself. He smacked out a double and two singles while Jimmy Zinn the Indian, was blanking the Fenway flock, but it didn't mean anything, except to help Bill's pretentious batting average.

MISTER BLACKBURN'S team has pretty good pitching. Lyons, Thomas, Faber and Adkins all are good checkers. They have been pitching good ball, but the rest of the crowd hasn't been coming through for them.

There have been a few revolutions on the club this spring, and probably the effects haven't disappeared yet. Art Shires, the temperamental rookie, who went off the handle a couple of times, is back on first base.

This youth has all sorts of ability. Fans may recall his sensational slugging when he broke in with Chicago at the Fenway last year. Shires was made team captain, but objected to discipline, and was chased home.

When he was recalled, Clancy had started to knock the cover off the onion, so Art had to cool his heels and his disposition on the bench. But he's back in there now, showing all his touted proclivities to hit and field.

CARRIGAN will probably chase Dan MacFayden out after today's pastime. Dan'el has rested well, and should be in there with all his stuff. The Chisox can hit the ball, but in their present state, they have streaks of batting weakness that are more or less mysterious.

Alphonse Thomas, a good right hander, was billed to work for Lena Blackburn. Alphonse has unfurled a few good games, and generally gives the Fenway inhabitants plenty of bother.

Our old friend Doug Taitt is playing the garden for the invaders. Doug, as you know was swapped for Bill Barrett. So both these boys will be working their heads off to make that trade look good.

Barrett has made a big hit here by his fielding. He knows how to play that difficult right sun garden. Taitt, not the best infielder in the world, was one of the best Sox hitters in '28, and naturally will not care how many Boston pitchers he murders.

Lewis School Wins Meet, Scoring 50

Lewis school of Roxbury, coached by John F. Barnicle, ran away with the intermediate school track and field carnival at Tech Field, more than doubling the score of its nearest rival.

The Lewis boys went into the second day's events two points behind the Oliver Wendell Holmes school as a result of the relay races held Saturday, but Lewis runners soon showed their heels to the boys from Holmes, piling up a grand total of 50 points to only 24 for Holmes in second place, and 12 for the Washington-Irving and 11 for Donald McKay.

SMITH FACES BUCCS TODAY

Pittsburgh, June 5—The Boston Braves, heartened by their victory over the Cincinnati Reds, who were threatening to push the erstwhile league leaders into the baseball cellar, are here today, thirsting for Pirate blood. Earlier in the year, when the Braves were blazing the pennant trail, the Pirates visited the Hub and dumped the Tribesmen in two of the three contests waged. That sort of started the Braves on the downward trail and, for that reason, the visitors are a little more than anxious to do the same by the present runners-up.

That getaway game at Redland must about saved Pitcher Leverett his job. "Dixie" was one of those listed to be let out on the 15th, the day when all large league clubs must reduce their rosters to 25 but now it looks as though some one else is going to be elected. The Reds were able to make seven hits off Leverett, but could only amass one run, "Dixie" hearing down in approved fashion whenever there were runners on the sacks.

It looked like Bobby Smith would draw the hurling assignment for today's fracas. The Pirates never did like Bobby's high ones.

IOWA REMAINS OUT IN COLD

Chicago, June 5—The University of Iowa lost the first skirmish in its fight to return to good standing in the Big 10 athletic conference.

After a five-hour meeting, during which the Iowa representatives promised to do everything possible to stop proselyting and subsidization of athletics, a special conference investigating committee ruled Iowa must wait until it can demonstrate its ability to stop these abuses.

Eagle Nine Meets Providence Today

Boston College starts its comeback drive after the Holy Cross drubbing by meeting Providence College at Providence today. The Eagles, with renewed spirit, are expected to swamp the Dominicans.

Jim O'Connor, Boston College's husky southpaw, will start on the mound for B. C., while Eddie Wynnapple, a Salem boy, is the likely slab selection of Providence.

O'Connor will be taking a test today for the Holy Cross game in Boston, a week from Saturday, which he is scheduled to twirl. He probably will have an opportunity to fling them against either Quantico or Tufts next week, and if he can go through these two showings in stride. There will be no question of the starting hurler against H. C.

GLASS TAX ON STOCKS SEEN AS DOOMED

By FRANK H. METCOS,
Financial Editor

State Street leaders expect nothing to come of the proposal of Senator Carter Glass to put a 2 per cent tax on transfers of stocks of less than $0 dis. Few are found who believe buying and selling within 60 days is necessary to speculate. Any attempts to date to draw a definite line between speculation and investment have failed and that, almost without exception, conflicts are entertained concerning the second half of the year.

Carter Glass

Equal expenditures running into the billion are being made each year by utility companies to supply the additional power needed for the electrification of rural districts and farms, the rapidly increasing demand for electricity for industrial purposes in the home, and to prepare ahead of time for further general national expansion.

Here and there sales have been behind what was hoped to encouraging freer consumption.

Some manufacturers of power are in an excellent position to base business activity, the following statements obtained from heads of various utility companies are of special interest:

Wilson S. Sloan, president, The New York Edison Company:

With industrial production establishing new high records, with [illegible] profits (including railroad and utility groups) hanging [illegible] and with [illegible] unfilled orders [illegible] production at record levels [illegible] not about last year, building [illegible] April output in 1928 [illegible] holdings ahead of last year and continued increase in transportation efficiency, retail sales running well above last year, income of wage-earners more than last year, [illegible] apparently heavy, I am very optimistic about the business outlook.

So long as business in general remains healthy the power and light industry will continue to progress because electric service has come to be essential in industry and homes. I believe there is opportunity for larger sales of electricity for home use and that our industry as a whole can expand with and should find a valuable and growing market by aggressive [illegible] commerce activities [illegible] revision of rate schedules to promote greater domestic use of [illegible]

Perhaps legislators will conclude that the Electric Board, Interstate [illegible] has been [illegible]

The market for other valuable things [illegible] example, is now [illegible] ghosts in the [illegible] ment in mind.

Henry Ford appears to have been the first to put the five-day week into effect on a major scale. His product [illegible] a week. In our studies of the five-day week movement, as published from time to time, we have previously mentioned John J. Raskob as one of its supporters. Mr. Raskob is quoted in The Financial Digest, published by Benjamin, Hill & Co. as follows: "With the great increase in employment of labor-saving machinery we have reached a point where five days a week for the workingman is a necessity. In industrial energy of the country can be regained without [illegible] result will be reflected in an increase in efficiency of labor, and from that a corresponding gain in profits for capital, and, above all, a greater enhancement in national comfort and happiness."

"To equip the wage-earner financially with this new phase of life should be one of the prime motives of our industrial [illegible] Our [illegible] investment trust will [illegible] formative stage has as its main object the affording of a safe, cooperative vehicle for investing the savings of the workers in equity of the industries which by [illegible] and efficiency in partnership with capital are constructing, upbuilding and conserving."

"The constant trend toward concentration of capital meant to gradual elimination of the middleman, and if this is carried to its logical conclusion we shall see the disappearance of what has been termed the great middle class. In perpetuating this great property owning small class of entrepreneurs it is essential that the basic investments in our leading and growing industries

"This plan, really a national partnership in business, is still in embryonic period. It must be developed upon thoroughly sound lines with a strong [illegible] quote safeguards around the investor's money."

"The securities corporation would not be primarily to buy stocks, as it would, if necessary, [illegible] to capital. Its stock would be sold to the public in a substantial [illegible] ing its purchase [illegible] cent of interest [illegible] operation or enterprise."

* * *

"In addition a plan should be worked out for a mutual bank for financing purchase of stocks. It would provide credit to investors of limited means, assuming the character of the great finance companies, organized to facilitate installment purchases of motor cars, radios and other comforts and necessities. Its primary purpose would be to extend credit to borrowers for payments on installments over a period of about twelve months with stock of securities corporation as collateral."

By one close to Mr. Raskob I am told he intends to devote himself wholeheartedly to the investment trust idea. It will be recalled that Mr. Raskob was recently elected a member of the finance board of General Motors. It is declared that, so far from being out of grace with the du Ponts and his other associates in the Republican party, Mr. Raskob could have his old job back at any time.

Support by Mr. Raskob, the maker of 80 American millionaires is perhaps the very best indorsement investment trusts have ever received this side of the Atlantic.

MISSOURI Pacific handed 29,218 revenue freight cars in the week ended June 1, against 27,643 cars in same week last year.

Utility Leaders Describe How Nation Is Prospering

By B. C. FORBES

ATLANTIC CITY, June 5—A cheerful picture of conditions throughout the country is obtained from leaders of the electric power and allied industries assembled here in annual convention. Interest is centered in the addresses of Owen D. Young, chairman of the General Electric Company, and Admiral Cary T. Grayson, president of the American National Red Cross.

B. C. Forbes

"Reports from dairy associations show them to be in excellent financial condition. Agriculture and poultry business, already one of our most important industries, will [illegible] and expansion this year than ever before.

"The most gratifying development of the past few months is, however, has been the marked increase in manufacturing. While the expansion in the paper and pulp industry has been the principal feature, there is abundant evidence that practically every section of national standing have come to realize the advisability of establishing during the present season. This industrial development has been of great importance, bringing new money, new blood and a renewed spirit of optimism to the entire Northwest.

"There is a greater demand for industrial power than ever before in the history of our company.

W Alton Jones, first vice-president, Cities Service Co:

The use of electrical energy in American industry and homes has now become so general that a composite load curve of the electric light and power companies of the country may be taken as a barometer for general prosperity. At present writing this curve for the current year to date indicates a generally healthful condition of general expansion throughout the United States and there is ample evidence that we should have a continuance of good business for the remainder of the year.

I know of no time in the history of the electric light and power business when we could look forward with more optimism.

I should like to the point where the accumulative effort of years of research is beginning to bear fruit in the production of new equipment, and each day sees new applications for electric power which in many cases have no competition [illegible]

COTTON LOWER STATE AND CITY IN NEW YORK BORROWING UP

New York, June 5 (AP) The cotton market today opened barely steady at a decline of 4 to 14 points. There were some overnight buying orders, but demand was stimulated by the bullish features of yesterday appeared to have been pretty well supplied. Prices eased off several points after the opening in response to relatively easy cables and favorable overnight weather advices.

Private reports of rains in the West and uncertainty as to the action of the Government report of the weather bureau brought in buying at the decline, and the market became somewhat unsettled after about 2 to 7 points net loss in prices fluctuated from 18.37 to 18.61 for July and from 18.81 to [illegible] for December.

This Day in Our History

WILLIAM SIDNEY PORTER, better known to his readers as "O. Henry," died in New York City on June 5, 1910. Porter is considered by many as one of America's greatest short story writers. He was born in 1862. He was noted for the snappy twist he gave to the finis of his many stories.

Chat on Fruit Salads

HERE'S the fourth of our salad chats, and I want to thank all those who have written me about this series. I did not realize that these salads would strike such quick response among my friends and so appreciative the kind letters you have sent about them.

Martha Lee

To those who have asked me to start with a condensation of pineapple and cabbage. Now don't jump down and say, I never could stand that! It is truly delicious and will be repaid. I am sure many times after the first serving.

CABBAGE AND PINEAPPLE SALAD

One cup of white cabbage shredded fine and crisped in ice water, drained, and dried. This is tossed together with ½ cup of diced orange, ½ cup shredded pineapple, and ½ cup of seeded white grapes (you can buy these in convenient cans, you know), dusted before serving, add 1 cup of mayonnaise to this, arrange on lettuce and garnish with maraschino cherries. The mayonnaise may be diluted with some of the maraschino syrup, if you like.

COCOANUT FRUIT SALAD

A cocoanut fruit salad is made by tossing together 2 cups of fruit, diced apples, 2 cups of chopped celery and ½ cup of cocoanut. Mold ton with mayonnaise, sprinkle with 1 tbsp. of lemon juice and 1 tbsp. of orange juice, salt and paprika to taste. Place in lettuce-lined bowl and dot with tart currant jelly cut in tiny cubes.

Now that citrus fruits are so reasonable why not try a combination of grapefruit and orange in your supper salad? Peel 1 grapefruit and 4 oranges and separate into sections, removing all membrane. This can be quickly done with the aid of a grapefruit knife. Then arrange these sections of each in a star pattern on lettuce, placing 1 tsp. of mayonnaise in the center and serving ice cold.

Our favorite Imperial Salad is made by dissolving 1 package of lemon gelatine in 1 cup of boiling water. To this is added 1 cup of pineapple juice (canned), 1 tbsp. of vinegar and the mixture is set away to chill. When stiffy add 2 slices of canned pineapple (cut fine), 1 can of pimento (cut fine) and 1 medium cucumber which has been chopped fine, salted and drained dry.

This is turned in a mold (oiled) until firm and arranged on lettuce with mayonnaise. Or it may be iced with whipped cream. Personally, this is not famous, but a valid and one I serve most frequently to my friends.

An unusual apple salad is made by arranging on a bed of shredded lettuce stewed or canned apricots and prunes (cooked but unsalted until soft) and top with a mixture of apple and celery (cut fine) and chopped preserved ginger and the combination is delicious.

For a real spring fruit salad try a mixture of pineapple, orange, banana, strawberries, honey, fresh mint and mayonnaise. Place a slice of pineapple on lettuce on an individual plate and on this put a slice of orange, then a layer of banana slices and top with a strawberry or two. Serve with mayonnaise which has been diluted with honey and garni hed with sprigs of fresh mint.

Date and Date Salad is equally delicious. For two cups of chopped nuts with 1 cup of creamed cheese. Add 1 cup of mayonnaise and stuff large seeded dates with this mixture. Place two dates in the centers of canned chilled Bartlett pears. Serve the pears on lettuce garnished with mayonnaise to which has been added a tbsp. of preserved chopped ginger.

Now that our salads are completed for the time being, won't you let me know what you would like me to write about next? I want this column to be really helpful to YOU and will appreciate your letting me know your wishes.

Faithfully yours
MARTHA LEE

FADS AND FASHIONS

Sweet and pretty is a bandeau and circlet set of white taffeta covered with a rose colored floral design. The whole bandeau is made of the taffeta, but the sides of the girdle are of elastic, assuring ample support.

Getting the short end of it, pajama trousers, while becoming when rolled and fuller, now hardly reach below milady's knees. Cut on circular lines, these trousers are worn with long sections of each in a star pattern on lettuce, placing 1 tsp. of mayonnaise in the center and serving ice cold.

Our favorite Imperial Salad is made by dissolving 1 package of lemon gelatine in 1 cup of boiling water. To this is added 1 cup of pineapple juice (canned), 1 tbsp. of vinegar and the mixture is set

Linen lends itself generously to the summer chapeaux and greatly enhances their summer charm. Hemstitched linen bands wind themselves around medium sized straws and tie in a brave bow at the side. Hats are also being faced with linen and pique.

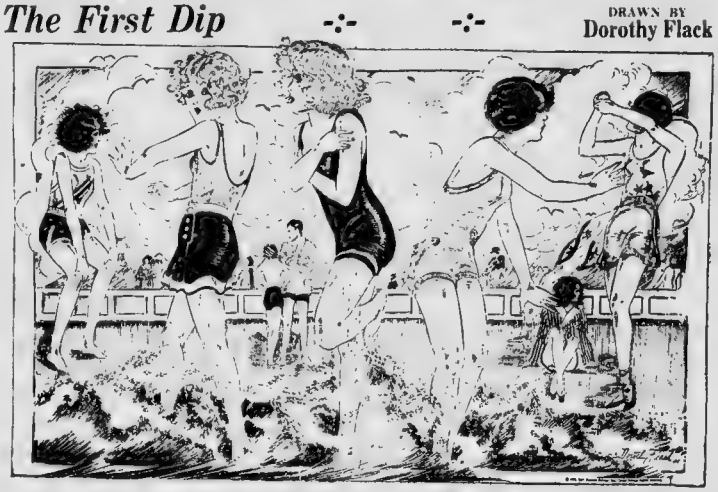
The First Dip

DRAWN BY Dorothy Flack



"O-O-O-O-H! It's cold!" That's the cry you'll hear every few minutes, now, that the bathing season is here. Miss Summer Girl knows how adorable she looks in her brand new swimming suit and nothing in the world will stop her from parading her charms and enjoying the swimming for which she's been waiting all winter. Of course, she may have been in the pools during the winter, but they are nicely heated and she could swim and dive in comfort. But going into the cold ocean water is something else. So she shivers and exclaims until after she takes the first plunge—then it is all right.

Just like everything in life, it's hard at first, but after the first try comes—ecstasy, that you wonder why you were ever afraid.

It's that way sometimes, too, with love. Lots of people are scared to death to fall in love, for they believe all sorts of foolish things about losing their freedom and merging their personalities with another's. But when they once fall in love they wonder why they were ever scared.

So don't be afraid either of the first dip or the first time you fall in love. They are both wonderful and both the most invigorating things in the world—especially falling in love. True, lots of times girls simply pretend they are scared when they really aren't. So be brave and take the first dip secure in the knowledge that everything is going to be lovely and you are going to have the best time of your life. And here's hoping that you'll find Love and Romance and Happiness in this Vacation Time.

June Roses in the Witching Moonlight

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX
An Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage.

JUNE roses and June moonlight—what a combination for lovers! Little wonder that brides and grooms prefer this month!

What is more romantic than the perfect beauty of a June rose? All down the ages the rose has been the favorite flower.

When Commander Byrd was journeying to Paris after his heroic trip across the Atlantic in the ill-fated plane that sank off the French coast, crowds came at each station to greet him and his crew. One little girl was held up to the train window to present him with a single red rose. For, to the French, the red rose is more than beautiful and fragrant—it is a magic symbol that means romance and perfection, fit tribute to a hero! The rose stands for romance—is romance.

Somewhere deep within their heart, all normal, wholesome men and women are romantic. But the modern fashion is to conceal the romantic attitude toward life under a pretty hard-boiled manner if not to deny romance, altogether. Yet men and women want more than boiling materialism, more than necking, drinking, cheap vamping, hail-fellow-well-met comradeship, quick marriage, quick divorce.

"Where is there a girl with idealism?" countless young men ask me in their letters. "Modern girls are so filled with money materialism that they laugh at you if you mention the word romance!"

Thousands of girls, on the other hand, are looking for young men who are not sheiks,—men with standards!

Both quests are likely to be successful in the long run. June roses still bloom in June gardens as they always have. Despite the cult of vulgarity, calling itself sophistication, there are countless homes today blessed with simple happiness and peace, governed by high ideals. For every jazz doll-bab there are hundreds of self-respecting girls who dream of love and marriage to the One Man. But those rose-girls go their way quietly without the blare of saxaphone and trombone.

Roses have their thorns. Love and marriage present undeniable difficulties, baffling problems, practical hardships. If you are careful you can pluck a rose and enjoy to the full extent its loveliness and fragrance without being hurt by its thorns. So it is with love and marriage.

Thoughtfulness and unselfish devotion bring success to the marriage of suitable love and friendship. But the girl and young man who think happiness will descend on them without effort of their own, because they marry for love, have disillusionment in store.

After their honeymoon Ed and Sue went to live in a rose-covered cottage in the country,—a new cottage with tiled bath, electric pump and deep grandfather's well drilled out of the rock, garage, furnace, neat garden and lawn. Sue and Ed felt that at last their dreams had come true.

Two months after their romantic Grandfather's well went dry and Ed had to carry every bit of water they used from the nearest neighbor's, two blocks away. Sue meant well, but what she did not know about cooking would fill a large volume. Her biscuits, too leathery to eat, burned roast and lumpy vegetables irritated Ed and caused her years of humiliation and rage. Yet someway, these two carried on in sheer desperation at times, other times with sudden pride and joy in their achievements and with surely increasing content and affectionate understanding.

Jack and Betty, working hard to make a success of marriage, keeping house in their tiny city walk-up, toiling hard all day at their respective offices, proved that poverty, monotonous drudgery, anxiety and illness cannot defeat love! Thorns are part of the rose, but who can resist roses? Now Jack is getting on—is in line for advancement at the office—and their larger apartment in a pleasanter part of the city has nursery and crib!

You can, if you will, preserve the glamour of your love despite marriage problems, unromantic tasks. Doing unromantic tasks beautifully and lovingly lifts the commonplace into an atmosphere of romance—perfects home life!

Any man can find a girl to fly high" with him. But what every man needs and longs for is a girl to steadily his feet, inspire his ambition, comfort his self-esteem. The girl who is content with an inexpensive good time when she knows her young man is starting a home-and-savings account, the girl who once in a while serves simple refreshments for "the crowd" at home after a pleasant evening's game; the wife who keeps right on being a good audience for her husband even when she has heard his stories before, husbands and wives who are tolerant and can disagree good-humoredly and forgive trifling irritations caused by traits that vex husbands and wives, alone all, who trust each other absolutely, unquestioningly—they will cherish the rose of love from its tiniest, shy rose-bud days through the glory of full bloom and fragrance to the sweetness of gently fading, but still lovely, petals and attar of roses!

A wit said the other day that romance advertises life. That is true. Romance advertises the beauty, mystery, essential goodness and idealism of life, of love and marriage; does not stress unduly its tragedy, sorrow or seeming failures. Romance tells you of the romance and exquisite beauty of the rose and does not stress thorns save in friendly, timely warning. You will romance infinitely your enjoyment of life if you appreciate romance.

Keep your love fresh and glowing by careful cultivation and be grateful always for its beauty. Let harmony and sweet concord be your ideal in marriage and home life. Then your heart will echo the song of true lovers:

"Oh, my love's like a red, red rose
That's newly sprung in June;
Oh, my love's like the melody
That's sweetly played in tune."

Beautifying the Ears

By MARIA JERITZA

"DEAR AUNTY," read a Christmas "thank you letter" received by a lady I know last month "It was sweet and thoughtful of you to send me the Christmas check and let me choose my own present. I had been longing for some crystal earrings to match my crystal necklace that I wear with formal clothes. I bought them immediately after receiving your check and so had them to wear all vacation to the many formals that come along during the holidays."

The first clipping I happened to chance at on my desk this morning reads: "Queen Shubad, Sumerian ruler of approximately 3000 years ago, wore golden earrings surrounded by a golden ornament resembling a large Spanish comb, and she carried her rouge in a vanity-case of cockle shells."

History repeats itself

Truly, ornaments and adornments, especially in matching sets, are dear to the feminine heart, and have been since time immemorial and among these beloved trinkets, earrings rank high.

Earrings have power either to detract from a woman's beauty or set it off enchantingly. So, when you indulge in a pair, be sure to choose earrings that not only match your necklace or Spanish comb and harmonize with your costume, but those set off and flatter the best points of your beauty and distract attention from less attractive features.

Earrings belong properly with dress or "formal" clothes, and are always out of place with sport or street costumes. Worn with the right accessories and at suitable times, they are tremendously effective.

Are your features long and thin with rather small eyes? Then long earring will accentuate these points, lines and prove most unbecoming. But plain pearl-drops, or any other circular earrings, should make your face and your neck look shorter and more round.

On the other hand, a woman with a full, round face and round eyes can lessen this full-moon effect by wearing earrings of triangular shape or with sharp little crescent angles. If your features and profile are striking and rather bizarre, unusual, striking earrings may harmonize with and set off your type. Earrings should not be worn with eye-glasses, for they only render them much more conspicuous. It is always wise, when wearing earrings, to leave off other trinkets unless they especially match and set off the earrings otherwise a woman may look overdressed, and lose entirely the effect of artful simplicity and smart dress which is the keynote of correct dress.

But quite apart from earrings, the ears, themselves, are beautifully ornamental these days. They are seldom entirely hidden by the coiffure, but view the world frankly or else peek out coyly from beneath intricate curls.

The ears should be scrubbed scrupulously but gently with soap and water at least once—some say, without letting any water drip into or settle in them. Dry them gently and thoroughly, especially in this season of cold draughts.

Include your ears in your cold cream facial treatment at night. Powder them when they are inclined to look red. Cover them with your hair if they are large or unshapely. Rub the lobes with a bit of massage alcohol or eau de Cologne to give them the dainty rose-tipped effect that is so charming. As a finishing touch to their toilet, put in one drop of delicate perfume, just back of each pretty, pink ear rapid, curt tones.

"Watch her—see where she goes. If anything happens, save me at once. I don't think she's having a love-affair, but you never can tell. If she gets any letters, I want you to get them first and read them. The girl's out of her mind. I've had to humor her. If I told her what I thought of her, there's no telling what she would do."

After Mrs. Strake had left Haley Robinson's words came vividly back to Felicity. Why not run away from a world which she disliked?

She would go at once, without hesitation or any kind of preparation. She could get things she needed out of the Park avenue apartment . . .

Six o'clock. New York sweltering in the summer heat.

It might be best to go to Haley Robinson directly. He would understand everything.

High up in the big studio building she rapped on an unpainted door.

Haley Robinson opened it.

"Welcome! You've come to cheer me up on an evening when I had nothing to do."

"I thought I'd come down and get that job you spoke of," she said.

"Oh, we can talk about that tomorrow. Tonight is something else. Hungry?"

"Yes."

"I'll have something sent in. It's easier than eating out."

"You are awfully nice to me," she said appreciatively.

"I'm going to be much nicer."

"You don't need to be."

He went up to her deliberately, and, before she knew what happened, he put his arms around her and kissed her. She shrank away. She had not wanted that kiss—just now. It seemed to spoil things.

"Oh, don't do that!" said Felicity. "Don't do that again."

Haley Robinson stood looking at her a little curiously. Her voice was cool.

"Just what did you come here for then?" he inquired.

"Just what I say. What did you come here for—if not to be kissed." She opened her mouth, tried to speak, could not. Then at last, "I could see me you could get me a job."

"How the deuce could I get you a job. A girl like you Without training of any kind. You didn't believe that nonsense, did you? Why, I'm likely to say anything when I get started!"

Felicity eyes were widely opened now.

"I've made a mistake coming to you," she said frankly. "You see I happened to take you seriously."

"You came here because you were looking for a love affair."

"I think you must be crazy," said Felicity sharply.

"You'll be telling me next you've never had a love-affair."

"Oh!" She tried to express her contempt, loathing, dismay, but could find no words.

She would go and go now. Where? That didn't matter, so long as she got out of here quickly.

"Now that we've got everything clear," he said, "I'll see if I can replenish the gin supply. My bootlegger is a boy just out of Harvard."

She heard him call a number, but her head was whirling as he talked over the wire.

"But, see here, I've got to have it." Call some friend and have him deliver it. Make it snappy."

Felicity started for the door. He stepped before her. "Listen, suppose I shouldn't let you go?"

"I'd try to—you'd try to stop me physically—"

"Of course not. I haven't the slightest notion of chasing you around a table. But I might point out to you that you're here in my apartment, and all I need to do is let your family hear about it, or your friends. Why, it would be a good story—publicity for both of us. Only you might not like your's."

Felicity's breath came hard. "You're a rotten sort of man," she said.

"If you take one step out of here, I'll see that everybody you ever knew hears it before noon tomorrow morning . . . Gad, but you're beautiful!"

A sudden terror came over Felicity. She forgot her caution, her attempt to keep her head. An impulse came over her to rush for the door, escape no matter what happened.

The door had swung open. A young man came into the room, and as Felicity's eyes met his, a cry broke from her lips, a cry of unutterable relief.

It was the stranger of the man who loved her; heart and soul, Nick Trenchard!

"Help me, Nick, help me. I came here to ask his advice, and he tried to make me stay. He says he'll tell everyone if I leave. Oh, don't let him, don't let him!"

Nick Trenchard put down the parcels he was carrying.

Then all at once, quite unexpectedly, he had taken two strides, and pinned Haley Robinson to the wall.

"You little, filthy—

"Let up! You're choking e' Robinson gasped.

Then while Felicity watched Nick Trenchard turned the painter upside down, knocked him backwards, pulled him to his feet again, thrust him up against the wall shook the breath and heart out of him simultaneously.

Robinson whimpered. Then Nick said, with a finger that pointed his remarks as it poked into Robinson's ribs:

"All this is just by way of showing you. If you let one word out of that little scared mouth of yours, if you ever try to injure Miss Strake in any way, I'll lay for you until I get you."

They went out of the apartment together, Nick slamming the door behind him with a bang

"I've made a frightful fool of myself. I want to go back to Newport right away," said the girl.

"All right, I'll take you back."

"It's not necessary," she said At the Grand Central, Nick purchased tickets.

They had to hurry. They found themselves in a day coach, the last car on the train.

"I never thought I'd be here," Felicity murmured "Oh, Nick, you don't know what I owe you."

"No, I owe you, because it makes me happy to do anything for you." Nick smiled at him, strange tenderness in his eyes, the uncorrupted kindness of his heart.

The conductor came along, looked at the tickets and said

"This is the Buffalo express Next stop Albany."

"Oh, Nick!" Felicity was sitting bolt upright now

"I know. Call me all kinds of fool I deserve it."

"Too bad," the conductor observed, "I'll have to charge for the fare to Albany."

With a groan Nick paid. Then all at once he smiled "This is going to be fun, Felicity, but what a break for me. Honestly I'd live on a railroad the rest of my life, if you'd live here, too."

She laughed, but a little tremulously "Do you really like me that much?"

"You know I do."

"Well, Nick, I am glad I'm so you do And it doesn't matter about this train. I'll set up and shake myself together"

She sighed, relaxed. Then her eyes closed Her head turned and weaved with the motion of the train Presently it fell toward the boy, and finding his shoulder rested there in content, as the train thundered on to Albany

And as it thundered on Nick examined his billfold with a dismayed eye It was already empty

Felicity was awakened by Nick touching her shoulder

"We're in Albany," he said It was two in the morning

"Nick where are we going? What should we do?"

"We'll have to beat our way back Are you game?"

Felicity wondered "Mother won't be home for another four days so Can we get back in four days"

"In four days," said Nick, "we could get to Madagascar!"

"All right," said Felicity, "I'm on"

The went out into the streets and wandered to the trolley "We'll go back as far as it goes," said Nick "then beg a lift." She girl had just 90 cents to pay their fare

After they left the trolley they walked, a car crowned up and a peasant voice said:

"Want a lift?"

They turned to clamber in gratefully. The man driving the car was evidently a country clergyman A tall, faded eighteen was in the back seat, evidently his daughter She had a healthy, vacuous, but pretty face, Felicity thought

Nick sat beside the girl and Felicity could see in the mirror above the windshield that he was smiling and she was chatting with him Nick he had said something funny and now she had laughed

And then, unaccountable jealousy felt angrily hurt and dismayed)

Then suddenly the car came to a halt

I turn off to the right here," said the minister. If you're on your way to New York, it would be better for you to get out here."

"I should think you'd like to have gone on with them," Felicity said with difficulty

"Why? How do you mean" It would take us way off the track."

"Would it?" she said with a little scornful laugh

Nick gave her a puzzled, wide-awake look Felicity found her heart was aching.

She had wounded him insulted him, treated him shamefully! Then in spite of herself, a little sob broke from her. The next instant she heard him vault over the fence and come across the hay. He had been lying awake, too!

"Oh, Nick, I'm sorry Forgive me. I'm a fool"

"There came in a firm house and Nick negotiated for some milk and cookies

Hungry as she was, Felicity felt no food could help her. Presently she got up and wandered over the farm

She saw Nick talking to the farmer at the gatepost She moved slowly nearer

The farmer knocked out his pipe. "I'll be gettin' to bed now. You can try the barn if you won't smoke"

Felicity made her way to the barn She could hear Nick walking behind her She entered the big sweet-smelling place, and started to climb to the hay loft

"Why doesn't he help me," she thought furiously. "I can't get up alone"

Then as he came closer to her, she said quickly "I don't need any help" and with an effort flung herself over the beam and dropped into the hay

She heard him closing the door. It was pitch black inside now. Then he was climbing up. The hay smelled tender his breath. He flung himself down without a word in the other corner

Lying there in the darkness, wide-awake, with staring eyes, Felicity found her heart was aching.

She had wounded him insulted him, treated him shamefully! Then in spite of herself, a little sob broke from her. The next instant she heard him vault over the fence and come across the hay. He had been lying awake, too!

"Oh, Nick, I'm sorry Forgive me. I'm a fool"

The Zig-Zag Scar -:- A Tense Short Story by Mildred Plem Merriman

IT was lonely in the cabin. She kept wondering about Chad—wishing he were home. Idly her glance strayed to the calendar on the wall. Yesterday's page still clung. She went over and ripped it off. It was the second she had torn since he departed.

Two days it should have taken him—no more. One day to drive the cattle to Dodson's Corners, one to return—unless—refusing to complete the mental picture the word evoked, she left the sentence dangling in her mind.

When after working long and faithfully three times a day, Chad suddenly found himself in town with plenty of money, anything might happen. Experience had taught her she had reason to be troubled by that pregnant word "unless."

To halt her unease—bending she took down a basket of mending—threaded a needle, but soon her fingers slackened over the task. For the 100th time her gaze went through the open door scanning the skyline for a REd Top rider.

Hungry for the sound of a voice, any voice—she went over and turned on the radio. She sputtered—crackled—gave nothing. She reached to twirl the switch.

Curt and cold came a man's voice nicked the stillness.

Station WRQ speaking at Dodson's Corners. Last night at a shooting fray here a gambler was killed. Ten thousand dollars in Treasury notes were stolen from the victim. Keep a sharp eye out for a man with a zigzag scar on his chin. He is known to be the killer. Posses are forming east and west of the range. They were after Chad—her Chad—and Chad was drunk.

Sober, she would have pitted his chances against any man's she knew; drunk, he was a fool Drunk, he had killed and stolen; yet in spite of all he was hers and incredibly, even at the moment, she was glad

She tried to think where he would go; what trail he would make for. Only he might help him. That once she knew. He had one good chance of escape the old unused trail over Table Top would take him to Canada. If he kept his head he might make it, before his purpose caught him up. He would try it, she felt sure.

Suddenly she remembered what a neighbor had told her in passing On the Canadian side at Lone Pine Gulch beyond Old Pedro's deserted shack, the bridge had broken, only yesterday a man and his horse had plunged through

It would be night before Chad could make it. In her mind she saw him go forward blundering—hesitated

Then at once mad as it was, she knew she must follow him, catch him before he reached the bridge.

With the resolution, all sense of coldness left her. She dashed toward the bedroom, pulled on breeches, boots, a sweater, jammed a gun in the holster at her waist, a felt hat on her head In the barn she shouldered her saddle—dragged it out.

Then memory of the corral stood her horse, head high, neck arched black against the sun. She whistled Whirling, he came to meet her In a minute she had the lariat noose snared at the straps She flung herself up. Hoofs clattered—pebbles flew

Underfoot fresh hoof prints gave her courage The trail grew rough and winding

At a fork in the path she got off to examine the hoof-marks Two sets of prints—one, two, and three pairs—not one, but two! Ahead they were at his heels She must hurry Faster—faster Climb—climb crushed low overhead; the air blew chill. She pressed on toward the summit. It stretched before her flat and bleak, jagged with crevices. Cold must crept in most new needled with dreary dawn

Before her, sheer and steep, the path descended She got off and led her horse down Loose rock, shale, slush, through sleet, hoof and boot slogged downward sucking the packing mud. Faith turned to stone. She lashed its stinging flails across the chasms.

Night came In the darkness the black of rock and the black of vacancy were one A tremor shook her miniature. Off in the dark over the face of nothingness, ran a zigzag scar of fire

Step by step she plunged down and came at last to trees—to blessed trees. Fire broke along the slope. She stared ahead and trembled. Stark in the glare stood a riderless horse the horse was Chad's

Terror seized her senseless shuddering terror like the terror of a child Terror of the night—the mountains the vast between—terror of a horse without a rider

Battered by hail half blinded by the lightning, her horse stood cowering refusing to go on. She tried to talk to him, but she had no voice left or strength Through the trees to the left a wan light fluttered Shelter they must have and quickly, as the night struck its flare, she saw the outlines of a shack It was Old Pedros she knew there was no other close to the trail Tethering her horse to a pine trunk under the lean of a rock, she crept forward, gun in hand

The door was closed, but two shadows moved at the window dark on the yellow blind Others before her had taken refuge from the storm Crying it's grace shelter of the eaves she knelt at the sill

Through a hole-inch slit at the bottom, she peered in All she could see was a shift of boots, but the spur on one she knew. She drew back, the better to watch Two shadows grappled—clinched The smaller one was Chad's

Back and forth went the silhouettes, softly as the shadows on a screen Dropped out by the clatter of the sleet, they seemed to make no sound—no sound at all. It was eerie—weird—unreal If only they would cry out—knock over something! To and fro across the shade they pitched, dragging away the pattern, putting it back. Then the larger shadow lunged—the smaller bent and doubled—sagged from view. Sharp on the blind an arm a hand, a puzzle flung its outline and the muzzle pointed down

She had no time to think, to plan, to reason She gave her self to action She pushed open the door, her gun against the glass and fired. The curtain dropped its shadow in a tangle of arms and legs. Feeling wobble and sick, she forced herself to go in

Chad's body slumped on the floor, but already Chad was stirring—coming to. Sinking to her knees beside him, she helped him first to sit up and then to stand. He tottered for a moment wavering brushed an arm across his forehead. Then bewilderment cleared from his eyes

He strode across to the shape on the floor, bent down and rolled it over Ignoring the trickle that stained them, he unbuttoned jacket, shirt, and reached in When his hand came out he held a packet of notes clutched triumphantly in his strong fist

She stared. Stumbling forward, she looked full in the dead man's face and coupled with relief in Chad's outstretched arm.

Scrawled on the chin of the stranger was a livid zigzag scar.

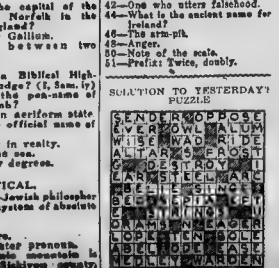
SOLUTION TO YESTERDAY'S PUZZLE



Hidden Fires -:-

CHAPTER 20.

A SIBILANT, hissing voice spoke through the darkness:

"I have one more score to settle with you, Don Carlos Whiting."

"Very well, David Nahuli"

The shadow disappeared into the tangled growth.

Don Carlos joined the waiting group

Despite the laughter of all, Don Carlos' mind was in a turmoil.

His "national" Organization of American Housewives" with headquarters, as set forth in capitals, by the cook stove and the cradle—with the washtub nearby.

I confess that this puzzles me, for of all the American housewives I have known—and those are not a few—I have yet to place one in such a locale. But to proceed:

The document informs me that it now is "chic" for women to be "modest." And the standard of modesty as indorsed by this crowd appears to be long skirts.

I quote from the masterpiece itself:

"American women of culture and refinement (ladies) recognize that a proper prudery is a woman's greatest asset and decent men prefer women soft and white and innocent rather than hard and brown and bold.

"Skirts 'decently short' mean skirts that extend to within eight inches of the ground, though shop girls, female stenogs, all women who are obliged to quickly move to wait on a customer or to answer a buzzer may continue to wear knee-length skirts. By their legs ye shall know them, for by the expanse of leg shown may ye recognize their lack of social background"

The idea, as I gather it, seems to be that there is a plan afoot to teach women how to dress, as to teach women how best to delight "decent" men—whatever that may mean. And this idea I note as well state at this point, fills me with a sense of profound weariness, an effect I believe it will produce upon many another woman who may come into contact with it—many another woman—who long ago discovered that the end and aim of her existence as to be the best sort of individual she knew, how to be and not to please men.

Futhermore, it seems to me that this organization is of the opinion that the term "lady" cannot truthfully be applied to shop girls, female stenogs or other women who are obliged to wait on customers or answers buzzers.

My dictionary defines "lady" as "a woman of refined or gentle manners— well-bred woman." And I now state with emphasis that I have found quite as many stenographers, shop girls and office clerks who possessed refined and gentle manners as I have housewives or persons of the feminine gender interested in putting over their organizations.

The object of the National Organization of American Housewives may be worthy—though from such information as I possess it seems to me only stupid and gentile one at that. But some way or other I do not believe the thing will get far by guerilla warfare on women wage-earners.

WHYTE-FOX

Romance of Honolulu by Aileen de Vilbris

What Has Happened So Far

Don Carlos Whiting goes to Hawaii after he discovers that his wife, Eve, is carrying on an affair with George Phillips, a neighbor. On landing he is accosted by David Nahuli, who offers him $5000 for delivering a black bag. He meets Eugenie, Nahuli's white wife, and Selma Wilson, crippled mother of an unusual family, which includes a daughter, Ruth. The latter plans a companionate marriage with Al Harding, much to the disgust of her father, Big Tim Wilson. Nahuli orders him to carry the black bag again. Eugenie invites him to her cottage. She tells him he has been delivering opium and warns him. Among revelations is that Nahuli forced her to marry him to save her father from the law. On Ruth's wedding day Big Tim goes on a vacation—disgusted. David learns of the affair between his wife and Don Carlos. At a gay beach party Don Carlos thinks he hears a movement in the bushes and goes to investigate.

(Now Go On With the Story)

CARLOS, promise me that you won't come near the house tonight Please"

"But, Eugenie, that isn't right There's no reason why you shouldn't know that I am near to protect you, if necessary "

"Please," and there was such entreaty in her voice that he promised

She left the car and he watched her slim, erect figure go up the mountain road.

He felt that he owed it to her to himself to stay near the victim, until he felt reasonably sure that no harm had come to her. He sat and waited. The stiff night, the windows of the coupe rolled down, listening. Suddenly a woman's voice shattering the silence!

Don Carlos jerked the handle of the car door impulsively, hesitated then, with a muttered oath leaped out and began to run in the direction from which the sound had come.

Ahead of him, in the moonlight, he saw a woman's figure, white-clad, struggling with a man who was trying to drag her into the bushes. Her hair was loose and flying about her face, her arms were bare, and as Don Carlos watched, the man struck her a blow that sent her reeling.

Then Don Carlos was upon him. He caught the man by the throat and flung him to the ground. Then he stood over him, his fists clenched, ready to strike again.

"You dirty coward!" he said. "Get up and fight like a man!"

The man sprang to his feet and struck out at Don Carlos, who ducked the blow and countered with a right to the jaw that sent his opponent sprawling.

"Don't hit me again," he whined. "I'll get out of here."

"You'll get out of here when I tell you to," said Don Carlos. "Who are you?"

"Name's Jones," the man muttered sullenly.

"Jones, eh? Well, Jones, you're a dirty coward and a liar. You're not going to get off as easily as that. Get up and fight

The Rainbow Man" stars Eddie Dowling, a New England boy, who at one time lived in Boston. He has had numerous stage successes to his credit, and the current photoplay marked his introduction to the talkies.

The film is a singing, talking production, and has proven a big success. It is woven around the all ventures of "Rainbow" Riley, come on Marion Nixon had the film mine lead, and her work in the best she has yet done in the movie

STEAMSHIP CO. CLERKS FETED

About 50 members of the staff of the general offices of the Eastern Steamship Lines were guests of Calvin Austin, chairman of the board at an outing given at his Dunstable estate. Luncheon was served in the restaurant on the New York line's pier at India wharf. The personnel then proceeded in Rural Blue Line buses and private cars for Mr. Austin's home. After an inspection of the estate an exhibition of bucksekt, riding was given by Dr. Austin's famous thoroughbreds. Outdoor games were played and buffet supper was served in the barn, following by dancing.

Among the officers present were president of the line Captain Eugene F. O'Donnell, and family; Vice president Andrew F. Sides and Mrs. Sides, Comptroller A. B. Sharp and Mrs. Sharp; Treasurer Harold E. Melzar and Mrs. Melzar, and Harry Brooks, general passenger agent. Both Mr. and Mrs. Austin were presented with gifts by the personnel of the line as tokens of the esteem in which they are both held

Rogers on the Air to Defend Snob Speech

Prof. Robert Emmons Rogers, whose "snob" speech to the Tech graduating class last Saturday night caused such comment spoke over WEZ WEEI at 7 o'clock last night. He will justify his attitude on "the ruling class."

Prof Rogers it is understood will refute the criticism aimed at him and "stand pat" on his statement that college graduates should exhibit a superiority complex

Boston Doctor's Boat In Hunt for Gold Sunk In 1725

Lunenburg, N. S., June 5 (AP)—Stories of a mysterious treasure hunt were revived today with the third annual visit to this port of the small schooner Robin under charter to Dr. F. L. Hall of Boston.

This belief gained credence by the presence aboard ship of a complete diving outfit and the fact that the schooner's operations have been confined to the vicinity of the Cape Breton coast, where the French pay ship Charmeux struck a reef and sank during a storm in 1725. The Charmeux went down with 310 passengers and crew and $500,000 in gold for French troops at Ft. Louisburg.

TECHNICIANS FOR 'AIDA' ARRIVE

The technical heads of the opera production of "Aida" at Braves Field on Thursday, June 27, arrived today from New York to confer with Maurice Frank, the art director of the gala opera production at which the Boston Evening American will be host to 5000 school children. Erico Coliero and Ben Allter, technical director and stage director, respectively, joined Mr. Frank in a survey of the Braves Field facilities for the proper presentation of the opera on June 27.

A feature of the presentation will be the lighting effects which it is hoped will give Boston music lovers a genuine treat. It is expected the entire ensemble of the production will approximate 350 people, including the augmented orchestra, chorus and ballet which is being especially created by Mme Maria Paperlo

The 5000 school children who will be given seats through the courtesy of the Boston Evening American will have choice locations. To witness this music spectacle the Aida Festival Editor will receive all letters of not more than 100 words on the "Value of Music" from children who are urged to send them along quickly.

PRAISE STIMSON STAND AGAINST SOVIET PACT

Washington, June 5 (AP)—Many letters aproving Secretary Stimson's announced policy of non-recognition of the Russian Soviet government have been received by the State Department

Secretary Stimson, in a letter April 16 to Matthew Woll, vice-president of the American Federation of Labor said America does not contemplate recognition of the Soviet This policy was maintained throughout the Coolidge administration and diplomatic circles have interpreted Stimson's stand as meaning President Hoover will continue the course

Officials of the State Department said today that, while many letters have been received approving the secretary's stand, communications urging the recognition of the Soviet are rare

Despite the recent expansion of American business interests in Russia, State Department officials declare the consensus among these interests is that the United States is pursuing the proper course and that non-recognition is not a detriment to trade

FOX WILL FILM STORY BOUGHT 6 YEARS AGO

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Copyright, 1929, by Universal Service

LOS ANGELES, June 5—A local boy gets a break. That is mighty good news in these days with all the stage folk grabbing off the biggest and fattest roles. Robert Frazer has been signed to play opposite Lenore Ulrich in "Frozen Justice." This is the role that Paul Muni was to have had, so it should give Robert a chance to establish himself in the talkies. Muni meanwhile will be starred in "A Friend of Napoleon."

"Frozen Justice," by the by, was purchased by Winfield Sheehan six years ago in Sweden. He kept it all these years because it was one of those that is difficult to put on the screen without dialogue. As soon as Fox went 100 per cent talkie it was dragged out of the wrappings and handed over to the microphone.

Ulrich Haupt and Louis Wolheim are others in the cast of "Frozen Justice," with Lester Lonergan in charge of stage embellishments. He is the same Lonergan who gave such a fine performance in "The Road to Rome."

ANTONIO MORENO might have lingered in New York for a longer period if he hadn't received a wire from Harry Cohn that he was wanted pronto at the Columbia studios. Tony and Daisy are just back from Europe after spending several months visiting Spain, France and England. Tony will be the lead in "Light Fingers," a melodrama now being produced by Columbia with Dorothy Revier in the leading feminine role.

While we are on the subject of "Light Fingers" it is to be an all talkie and one of the five all-talkies that are now in production at the studios. Supporting Tony Moreno are Thomas Rickett, Carol Nye and Charles Gerrard. Joseph Henabery is the director.

WILL ROGERS was due to arrive here via airplane in other words, Winnie Sheehan says that Will Rogers came clean from Pittsburgh in a plane. Rogers he gave word immediately on "Lucky Had to See Paris," the story of a rich man who takes his family to Europe and returns a sadder but wiser man after shooting the bank roll.

Elizabeth Patterson, well known stage character actress, plays Rogers' wife and Owen Davis, Jr., and Marguerite Churchill play the youthful love interest. Winnie Sheehan is not going to make a Romeo out of any of these talented aged actors and he is sensible. They have much more appeal in character roles. A bachelor is being built for Rogers at Fox Hills. Sounds like an old Spanish custom.

LUPINO LANE, who gave such a perfect imitation of Lina Basquette in her dance at the Mayfair, is to have a chance to do some of his nonsense on the screen. Ernst Lubitsch has engaged him for a part in "The Love Parade," opposite Maurice Chevalier. I wonder why Lane hasn't done more on the screen lately. He is a very excellent comedian and he has the technique of both the screen and the stage down to the tips of his fingers.

Another of the stage's favorites, that cute little comedienne, Lulu Bett, is to be starred in a picture for Tonight. That is the company for whom her husband, Eddie Brandt, made "The Rainbow Man" and now "Honeymoon Lane." Wonder if Zasu will do baby talk stuff, the kind she made so popular when she was in the Ziegfeld shows.

Polores Del Rio at the Mayfair dance, Jack Dempsey and Estelle Taylor attending the movies on Hollywood boulevard, the Villa Zaza lotta tenants hearing some grand music not on the radio, George Fawcett giving Jack Holt a lesson in driving a car, Beverly Hills welcoming Will Rogers, Lenore Ulrich moving into the Mary Lewis house. The red fezzes of the Shriners dotted Hollywood's landscapes. That's all today. See you tomorrow!

BOSTON ~~SUNDAY~~ EVENING AMERICAN

LARGEST EVENING
CIRCULATION IN NEW ENGLAND

Eternal Vigilance Is the Price of Liberty

Six of the nine judges of the great United States Supreme Court have agreed that Mrs. Rosika Schwimmer could not be accepted as a citizen of the United States because she said she would not personally bear arms in any future war.

It makes no difference that Mrs. Schwimmer, fifty years old, would not BE ALLOWED to bear arms, even if she wanted to; not even a man of that age is allowed to fight.

It makes no difference that Mrs. Schwimmer will agree to defend the Constitution and laws of the United States by every other means short of bearing arms.

It makes no difference that she is willing for other women to bear arms, because, she says, "I CONSIDER IT A QUESTION OF CONSCIENCE."

It makes no difference that she is willing, in case of war, that she shall be dealt with by the Government as other conscientious objectors are dealt with.

It makes no difference that thousands of American citizens of the sect of Quakers, to which the President of the United States belongs, considers it wrong for either men or women to bear arms.

Why should we be less liberal in allowing freedom of conscience to those seeking admission to our country than to those who hold its citizenship?

Mrs. Schwimmer is no anarchist. She expresses steadfast opposition to any undemocratic form of government, whether dominated by white terror, proletariat, military dictatorship or otherwise. She says:

"All my past work proves that I have always served democratic ideals and have fought—though not with arms—against undemocratic institutions."

She admits the charge that she has no feeling of nationalism, remarking that this is proved by her giving up the land of her birth to seek citizenship in the United States, whose government she considers superior to any in the world.

Such sentiments, such qualifications for citizenship, are all outweighed, in the opinion of six judges of the Supreme Court, by Mrs. Schwimmer's refusal personally to bear arms and her confession that she is "an uncompromising pacifist."

The decision regarding Mrs. Schwimmer is more than an injustice to her and a wrong to this country, deprived of the citizenship of this woman of high character, intellect and sincerity.

It is something more—it is another instance of the ABUSE of the powers of government to trample on the principles of freedom and tolerance on which this country was founded.

Our liberties are gradually being taken from us.

By prohibition a blow was struck at personal liberty against which the nation is in revolt.

Freedom of speech and assembly are more and more restricted by the arbitrary action of reactionary administrations and by the arbitrary decisions of reactionary judges.

A free press is being destroyed by the undisturbed wholesale purchase of newspapers by selfish public service corporations.

Now freedom is pursued and hunted down in the sacred hiding place of personal conscience, in this outrageously un-American decision to bar Mrs. Schwimmer.

In a little while, all that our fathers fought for will be lost, unless the people are willing to fight to retain their liberties.

Useless; We Have Money

Why Not Flying Ships?

The Navy asks for two new battleships, to cost fifty million dollars. They would be two nice targets for foreign airmen, if we had a war. But the country can afford them, and Navy men, disinclined to fly, or dive in submarines, must have some place to walk up and down.

Fast cruisers have their use, to harass enemy commercial shipping, or blockade enemy ports, airmen and submarines permitting.

But of what use is a battleship. No use was made of Europe's dreadnaughts in the big war, with airplanes and submarines not yet half developed. In the next war, they would be camouflaged and hidden, hidden behind commercial ships, as were Britain's dreadnaughts last time.

See America First

We have no quarrel with those who have decided to visit foreign lands this Summer, but the fortunate ones are those who are seeing America first.

There are interesting historic spots in Europe, but our own history is right here.

Take to the highways this Summer and see the battleground of Lexington, French settlements in Michigan, the lakes of Wisconsin and Minnesota, the Spanish missions of California and the romantic country of the South.

You can camp all the way at a cost of not more than one dollar per car per night, or you can stop at overnight lodgings, or again you can stay at hotels.

Every town will make you welcome, and you will come to know and appreciate your own country as you never have before.

New York Day by Day

by O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, June 5—An increasing demand for mystery and detective stories is burning up midnight oil for writers of thrillers. Almost every popular magazine is in the market for a bang-up hair raiser, and those who can turn them out are not worrying about the coming of winter.

Edgar Wallace is not only the best selling novelist in England, but his shockers have a wide sale in America. E. Phillips Oppenheim could not fill his orders for international intrigue in 20 years. And Willard Huntington Wright as S. S. Van Dine is one of the literary sensations of the hour.

So great is the demand one publishing house organized a subsidiary known as The Crime Club, Inc., through which it purports to give its subscribers their newest mysteries two weeks in advance of publication. It is reputed to have several thousand steady clients.

Men like Premier Baldwin of England, Woodrow Wilson, Theodore Roosevelt and Herbert Hoover have given impetus to the craze by letting it be known they found recreation in mysteries. On almost every great man's night table these days is a blood-and-thunderer.

There is perhaps no mental relaxation superior to following the slick crook from crime to retribution, guessing who plunged the dagger or who has the pearls. A justice of the Supreme Court often turns from a knotty legal tangle to plunge headlong into a detective story.

The trouble now is the market has been flooded with shoddy tosh. Mystery yarns in their striving to thrill and terrify have become as mawkish as the old penny dreadfuls. I know one writer who turned out four full-length mystery novels in 15 days.

No writer can grind out so much work with any degree of excellence. The fact is that in the hundreds of detective tales the last year not more than six could stave off the yawn—as a mystery reader. I recall only three that kept me up—"The Bellamy Trial," "The Murder on the Blue Train" and "The Canary Murder Case."

There is a story of a friend calling up a mystery story writer. A servant explained he was just starting a new detective story.

"Oh, all right," said the friend, "I'll wait."

Broadway's new gastronomical diversion for stay-ups who patronize the pineapple, orange and apple juice huts is the skinless hot dog sandwich. I don't know who thought up skinning the hot dog, but it is a beaut.

The biggest night club spender is a teetotaler. He has the Diamond Jim Brady philosophy about Broadway: "It's fun being a sucker if you can afford it." His reservations in a year's time amounted to more than $10,000 for couvert charges alone. A big spender, he totals his checks and always catches split pencil additions.

I'm no great shakes in letting myself go in sentiment, and furthermore it is none of my business, but I'd like to take that spendthrift for a ride on an elevated train crawling its serpentine way through a tenement section down town. He could gaze into many cheerless and curtainless flats where the price of one couvert would bring great happiness—more happiness indeed than buying out a club for the night for a lot of unappreciative parasites.

Over the portals of a burlesque theater on Houston st. is painted: "All you who enter here, leave your troubles behind—Dante."

A popular cafe which rightly regards hat checking as an imperinence has a coat room where patrons may deposit their wraps and select them afterward. In four years it has not had a single theft.

Mrs. Solomon Says—

By HELEN ROWLAND

VERILY, verily, my Daughter, the way of a man with a maid filled Solomon with wonder, when the world was young and simple.

How, then, would the way of a modern lover baffle and confound him!

For, behold, the lover of yesterday was filled with doubt and subtlety and applesauce. But the lover of today is filled with self-assurance and nonchalance and HOT AIR!

With caution and trembling and much finesse, did the lover of yesterday seek the way to a damsel's heart.

But the lover of today makes no DETOURS. For in his bright psychology, the shortest distance between two points is that between the introduction and the first kiss.

Go to. He approacheth her not with humility and burnt offerings and stammered petitions. He playeth not the "devoted slave."

Nay, as a Conquering Hero, he dasheth up in his motor car, with the heralding of horns and the blowing of trumpets, as one who saith, "Attention, Woman! Look who's here!"

He wasteth not his words in extolling her charms and praising her virtues; neither in telling her how wonderful she is.

Nay, verily. He putteth up a good SELLING talk. He telleth her how wonderful HE is!

His line is not, "Love me—or I suffer! Kiss me—or I die!"

It is "Love me—or you'll be sorry! Kiss me—or think what you'll MISS!"

He doth not say, "Oh, Beloved, thy kisses are sweeter than myrrh and frankincense and warmer than a Bodenheim novel!"

Nay, he commendeth his own kisses, saying, "Be of good cheer, oh Little One! For the kiss which I now bestow upon thee is no amateur product, but the work of an artist, who knoweth women. Yea, it is de luxe!"

Doth she scorn him? He is not cast down, but only amazed at her blindness. He doth not chide her, but only warneth her sorrowfully that she will regret her folly when her "chance" hath slipped.

He calleth her attention to his perfect technique; he hinteth darkly at his prowess among women. He painteth himself as an "opportunity." He filleth her with propaganda.

Verily, verily, in the time of Solomon, the way of a man with a maid may have been mysterious. But the way of a modern lover is the way of an insurance agent with a good prospect. For, alas, courtship hath become SALESMANSHIP!

SELAH.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

AS I write there is music, terrific music, all about me.

I have put the record of Wagner's "Ride of the Valkyries" on the Victrola and now the room rocks and shouts with their mad galloping.

Across the sky the wild Norse maidens stream on their dread service to the lords of Life and Death.

Screaming, they leap astride the plunging storm—and clench the lightning in their fierce white hands!

Their bright hair banners on the wind—their cry is mingled with the thunder's blast.

Far down the lanes of heaven I hear them clattering until their shouts die down at Odin's throne.

And, listening, I think of women. I think of women as they really are. Not meek and timid, pretty bits of flesh—soft, pampered creatures, trained in pretty ways—

But women, as God meant them—as they are at heart—

Valkyries! Guadians of life and death.

Creatures He molded to outride His storms.

The world has not, for a long time, known the truth about women. Once it knew the truth because once women lived the truth.

Once women were as brave and strong as men—asked no exemption or protection from their mates, but were their equal partners—hunting, killing, bearing babes beneath a shrub and suckling them along an open trail.

Once women were like men, brave brutes, shot through with a vague yearning dream of Joy. And then they lost their place—and learned to smirk and lie and squeal at mice. But in her heart each woman is a wild, free thing and, some time, has her hour of bravery.

Once I stood in a hospital and saw something which I shall never forget.

I saw a baby come into the world.

The mother was a little, pink, ineffective looking thing. Centuries of wrong living had made her little and pink and whiney.

But in that awful hour her ineffectiveness dropped from her and she became real again.

Out, out she went on her fierce service to the lords of Life and Death—

Then, while we watched, she rode her storm—

Into the night—

Into the rending thunder and the plunging pain—

Straight to the throne of God she hurled her soul—

To find her child!

Then, when her baby squealed, she gave a great laugh—

And slept.

Women were never meant to be soft bits of flesh.

AT HEART THEY ARE AS BRAVE AS GOD HIMSELF!

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

By ALINE MICHAELIS

SUCH splendid things men dare to do, always for gold and fame; to make their worldly hopes come true, to win the throng's acclaim! How lofty and how hard the tasks to which they set their hands. Whatever Fame, the fitful asks they seek at her commands! Their wishes and their strength are bent to reach pride's highest zone, and yet—their best is never spent except for love alone! For love alone the heart denies all goals that once it knew, and with a touching patience tries to shape its world anew. Gold? Fame? Through all the centuries their lure the race has known, but far more potent still than these the voice of love alone!

The BAER Facts

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

AFTER looking over the walloping budgets and balloon referendums for 1929 we realize that being a government is a very unhealthful occupation.

Even though President Hoover has reduced his monthly gas bills by selling the Mayflower, we still have big milk bills for a couple of Zeppelins.

Queer thing about otherwise stationary citizens is the motto that whatever you do to a government is perfectly legal.

In peace, we claim rebates. In war, we claim exemption. We skin it on our income blanks and stuff it with demands for pensions. We sell it paper shoes for soldiers and cheer when the boys march to wear them out in two steps.

When we are in the bunkers of depression we blame it on the government. When we are sailing along the master-lines and contours of prosperity we forget who is Vice-President.

When there is snow on the ground we know it is the fault of the administration. But when the violets are twittering in the dells we say, "Ain't nature grand!"

There are more ways of skinning a government than there are of teasing a monkey.

The newest method is washing stamps.

When a man washes a stamp he ain't trying to remove the glue

He is trying to erase the cancellation marks, thereby making a new car out of a used job.

Since the parcel post has infested this country with sudden deliveries of large areas of merchandise, stamps have been printed in large denominations.

Washing a two-cent stamp would not pay for the soap. But you can afford to send a 10-dollar stamp to a Turkish bath for a shave, shampoo and massage and still make seven dollars on the transaction.

Each year old Jonathan Government loses one million dollars because the patriotic jippers have inaugurated a clean stamp week.

The boys have turned petty larceny into big business.

The stamp-scrubber first takes the battle citations off the valuable plaster and then sells it again for its face value.

We had always thought that ice cream cones and stamps were two articles that could only be used once.

This information strikes me in a third-class but a vital postoffice.

The government is making appropriated efforts to track the stamp-washers to their laundry.

But it is a difficult task, as the only clues are soap bubbles, which evaporated in a most annoying manner.

Not So Very Happy.

IMPORTANT NEWS FROM ROME tells of the rebuke administered by Pope Pius to Mussolini.

In connection with the reestablishment of the Popes temporal power, Mussolini spoke in a manner that the Pope officially called "condemnable modernism."

In Mussolini's attitude the Pope sees a danger to Christianity, heretical expressions as to the very essence of Christianity and Catholicism.

The Pope's letter to Cardinal Gasparri rebukes the Italian dictator, in stern fashion, and Europe wonders what the result will be.

Mussolini is not patient and the Italian accord with the Vatican may be in danger.

Pope Pius, defying Mussolini, reminds you of an earlier pope, nearly 1500 years ago, traveling to the Danube to place himself in the power of the savage Attila and causing the latter to turn away from Rome.

Five hundred thousand British [illegible] watched the [illegible] and saw [illegible] win the [illegible] ...as were sur... [illegible] the running. Worse than the loss of money, which impoverishes, and the winning of money, which demoralizes, is the amount of thought wasted on a race without meaning.

However, a horse race or even a prize fight is better than the murderous gladiatorial games to which they have succeeded. The human race must improve slowly. And the 90 per cent of us that cannot think seriously must be amused.

The Museum of Natural History in Chicago, established by the generosity of the late Marshall Field, exhibits two perspiring things, each 25 feet long, nine feet high, given by Ernest R. Graham.

Fundamentalists and Modernists who believe and do not believe that the earth is only 6000 years old will be interested to hear that one picture shows the brontosaur, that lived 150,000,000 years ago, the other the mosasaur, more modern, lived only 110,000,000 years ago.

More interesting than the brontosaur or the mosasaur and their doings is the fact that human beings undoubtedly will be living and working here 100,000,000 years from now. What sort of creatures will they be after so long a period of evolution?

Wall Street did not [illegible] happen yesterday. Everyone in the United States knows that Wall Street ought to be investigated and stock gambling discontinued. Anybody that bought stock and sold within 60 days should be taxed substantially.

Such talk is annoying when you are watching the ticker. However, it does not affect real values, although it may affect temporary price quotations.

Select your real value, pay for it, don't gamble, and you need not worry.

In New York yesterday the directors of the Guaranty Trust Co. voted to their stockholders $20 a year profit participation, announced a division of a "melon" of about $50,000,000 at present market prices.

The business of lending money is comfortable and profitable.

The new British cabinet may include one woman, Margaret Bondfield, member of the Labor party.

Many believe that President Hoover's cabinet should include at least one woman. That may come later.

The United States should have at least one woman ambassador to an important country, if only to prove that women have more common sense than men.

Eighty four years ago a little girl was born in San Francisco under the American flag. She died on Tuesday, San Francisco, when she first saw it, was a little Mexican pueblo called "Yerba Buena."

She was the first "white child" of Anglo-Saxon parents born in San Francisco.

It is hard to realize how many things have happened in this country since that little girl was born.

A man passed his examinations yesterday in Warsaw, Poland, got his license as taxicab driver, and went to work for $20 a week. His name is Prince Vladimir Constantinovitch, and he is a nephew of the late czar of Russia.

The grandson of a gentleman recently kaiser in Germany is said to have got a job not long since in the Ford automobile factory.

Probably both of them, with out knowing it, are happier than they would have been if the czar had lived and the kaiser had stayed on his throne.

Nab Count in Big Rum Ring Raid

New York, June 6—Count [illegible] de Polignac, said to be of the old French nobility, was arrested by prohibition agents today and charged with being the European agent of an international rum ring. Seven cases of liquor were seized in the count's suite.

The count's arrest occurred in a general roundup of 37 men in connection with the activities of the alleged ring.

Swooping down on warehouses, business offices, homes and hotels, the agents arrested a dozen of the alleged ring leaders within the first hour and confiscated rare wines liquors and cordials worth a fortune.

The ring maintained its own salesmen and trucks. Its warehouses were guarded by armed men and burglar alarms, according to Calhoun.

It possessed its own "business offices" in various New York skyscrapers and all over the country.

William J. Calhoun, chief in charge of the 40 agents making the roundup, said papers relating to activities of the ring were found in Count de Polignac's suite.

Another raid conducted on the "headquarters" of the ring at 20a Fifth ave., resulted in the arrest of two other alleged leaders, William Bartels and Philip D. Gowen.

VESUVIUS HAS NEW OUTBREAK

Naples, Italy, June 6 (AP)—Explosive activity in the eruptive zone of Mt. Vesuvius increased today with tremendous showers of rocks and ashes bombarding the walls of the great crater. There was a slight subsidence in the flow of lava, however.

An official bulletin from the Vesuvius Observatory said further danger probably would be averted. Villages around the southern and eastern base of the volcano were gone stricken as they deserted their homes.

Trudging behind their two-wheeled carts, which carried household effects and all their worldly possessions, they prayed to be delivered from "the wrath of Vesuvius," and sang hymns of trust and faith in Providence.

The little village of Terzigno appeared becoming encircled with a belt of lava from a flow which first started toward Campitello woods, but somehow changed its course and entered the village itself.

Failure of government witnesses to identify nine defendants in court resulted in directed verdicts of not guilty for them.

Mrs. H. H. Rogers, mother of the former Countess Salm Von Hoogstraeten, declined today to discuss report that divorce has been awarded her husband, Col. Rogers, Standard Oil magnate, in Holland.

His Petition for New Name Starts Chorus

..... Then Kelly said:

"When Michael, the Irish archangel, stands,
The angel with the sword,
And the battle-dead from a hundred lands
Are ranged in one big horde,
Our line, that for Gabriel's trumpet waits,
Will stretch three deep that day,
From Jehosaphat to the Golden Gates—
Kelly and Burke and Shea."
"Well, here's, thank God, for the race and the sod!"
Said Kelly and Burke and Shea.

(From "The Fighting Race" by John Finley Clarke)

And that, practically, is the story of Grace Brandt Kelleys and Kellys feel about the desire of William Ellsworth Kelley of Newton to change his name to Kelley.

The Kelleys and Kellys, almost in chorus, declared today that any Kelley who desires to step out of the ranks as one who does not belong anyway, by birth or other right.

William Ellsworth Kelley of Newton, in his petition filed in Middlesex Probate Court, declares that he is of Pennsylvania Dutch ancestry but, because of his name is "continually being subjected to mistakes as to family affiliations."

"HEIGH HO" SAY ALL

"Heigh ho" said the Kelleys and Kellys today when they heard of the Newtonite idea.

"Could it be hurried up?" asked Mrs. James Kelley of 192 Sixth st., South Boston, who was told that the Newton Kelley wished to fade out from the Kelley-Kelly organization

"I have been a Kelley for 32 years, thanks to Jim, and if I haven't regretted it in 32 years why, of course, I never will. And why should I? Any Kelley that doesn't want to be a Kelley is no Kelley."

Said James Kelley himself, in corroboration:

"Her sentiments are mine and if this Kelley wants to form another league—let's give him a hand. The name of Kelley is good enough for anybody."

Edward T. Kelly, of Ellery st., Cambridge, in addition to taking a bit of a fling at the petitioner, want the game one better and declared that he is one of the few Kellys who spell their name correctly. The second "e" he asserted, is superfluous and wrong.

"I am ashamed of anybody by the name of Kelly who does not want to keep that name," he said "Any Kelly desiring the name of Kelly is welcome to do so, for he does not know what he is losing."

Pausing a moment while walking his beat, Patrolman Joseph B. Kelley of the Cambridge police expressed similar sentiments.

"I was a Kelley when I was born I am a Kelley now and I will be a Kelley until the final settlement at the funeral," declared the patrolman. "I'll match the name and the record of my name against any other in the world. This man's business is his own and if he wants to change his name to something else—well, who among us Kelleys cares?"

"WON'T BE MISSED."

Miss Helen Kelley, employe in the State Department of Public Safety, said she was inclined to take a charitable view of the change-in-name petition.

"I suppose it is for a business reason," she commented. "However, if he feels that way, let him go ahead. One will never be missed."

From Miss Margaret Kelley, a stenographer, of 36 Saxon st., Dorchester, came the declaration that in her 20 odd years of existence she has never encountered any condition that would lead her to wish her name was otherwise.

"Songs have been written in praise of the Kelleys," she said, "and their exploits have been the subject for stories and poems. I don't understand why anybody should wish to get rid of the name I certainly do not."

Another stenographer, Miss Grace Kelley of 184 Prospect st., Cambridge, said that among her friends she numbers several other Kelleys.

"I never have seen them blush in shame," she added, "and I certainly do not. It is my name—and what is mine is best and to be fought for."

MOTHER OF 8 KELLEYS

Mrs. Margaret F. Kelley, wife of Lieut. Edward F. Kelley of the Cambridge fire department, said:

"I am the mother of eight Kelleys. When I changed my name to Kelley it was the best feather I ever got in my hat. It is a good old Irish name, and anybody who bears it should be proud."

Miss Grace Kelley, stenographer, of 191 Prospect st., Cambridge, who comments sharply on petition of William Ellsworth Kelley for a change of his name.

By DAVIS P. SENTNER,

New York, June 6 Purported letters from "Kittens" Leightner, who is now Mrs. Giles Brodel to Jefferson W. Seligman, banker, whom she is suing for $100,000 written in Paris were made public by the banker's lawyers. They contain, among other things, much gossipy comment on society personages in Paris.

Some extracts follow.

"You see, Jeffie, you've made me absolutely dependent on you for so many years and promised me you would never see me want, I naturally believed you and did not think you would wait until I was so far away from everyone and in a helpless condition to take the attitude you have."

"I have letters to some very nice people here that Avery Rockefeller gave me before I left New York. He is a friend of Henry and called the day before I left. Mr. Clews, Sr., and Henry came over Saturday from Cannes WANT'D HER TO GO.

"They wanted me to return with them, but must buy decent clothes for southern wear before I go. I had a letter from Mr. Henry Deaton, the American consulate here, and he is very charming. I am lunching with him today at the Criller.

"I saw Dick Lounsberry one day in the Ritz tearoom He telephoned me for a rendezvous, but I haven't seen him. I've been to the opera several times and I attended the opening of the salon exhibition with the Count De Saze.

"Yesterday I went to the races with the Countess De Pulligne and her cousin, the Count De Saze. She is lovely and had she lived in the days of the revolution she would have been guillotined."

Poor Girl, Rich at 63, Wins Master's Degree

Chicago, June 6 (AP)—It is never too late to learn for Ida Minna Schmidt once a penniless immigrant girl from Germany, who tonight at the age of 63 received her master's degree in law.

For eight years Mrs. Schmidt has been attending night classes at the Kent College of Law five nights a week most of the time. It wasn't as though she had to, for from her beginning in poverty she has risen to the head of a million-dollar costume business and an Evanston estate.

"I merely took the course to improve my mind," she said, "and make myself fit for the many things I plan to do in the future. When I use my knowledge of law it will be in a less complex helpful things for the good of humanity."

Mrs. Schmidt spoke no English when she came here but the public schools changed that. Now she lectures frequently on the history of women's dress, being regarded as an authority on period design and dress.

Gustaf E. Mattson — Frank D. Mattson

Joseph L. MacManamin — Edward F. MacManamin

Two pairs of brothers are candidates for civil engineering degrees at Northeastern University. They are Joseph and Edward McManamin of Wakefield and Frank and Gustaf Mattson of Waltham. The last youth was born in Sweden.

TWO PAIRS OF BROTHERS TO GET DEGREES

Two sets of brothers, each one a rival in class studies and probably rivals in their coming professional careers, will be graduated from Northeastern University in Boston on June 19.

The brothers are Edward and Joseph McManamin of Wakefield, both civil engineering students, and Frank and Gustaf Mattson of Waltham, both mechanical engineering students.

All four have been interested in the same line of athletics, that of track events.

Edward Francis McManamin is 23 years old, while Joseph Leo McManamin is a year younger. Both prepared at Wakefield high school. The former was on the interclass track teams for three years and a crack bowler. The other brother was also clever at knocking over the pins, and qualified first as assistant manager and then as manager of the track team.

Judge Calls $50 Fair Price for "Virtue"

Legal light is thrown on the [illegible] as to the value of a two-foot high statue of "Virtue" was settled in the Lowell District Court today by Judge Frederic W. Fisher, who ordered John Stewart of Brantford, Ont., Lowell Textile Institute student, to pay $50 to Miss Alice E. Plaisted, elderly owner of "Virtue."

The judge said he considered the young man had acted honorably during the whole episode, which the court classed as a thoughtless college prank. The judge criticized the woman for demanding the arrest of the young man and asking excessive damages of $500.

A month ago a group of students saw the statue outside the woman's home on Princeton boulevard. Stewart, in humorously throwing his arms around the statue, broke [illegible] parts of it accidently.

Two days later Stewart sought out Miss Plaisted and asked her price for damages, explaining he hadn't realized the fragile condition of "Virtue." The woman demanded $500 and also sought a warrant from the court.

Finally Stewart was brought into court and he was placed on probation on his agreement to pay the $50.

The home of Joseph Levine, the arrested man, is in Brookledge st., while that of Joseph A. Levin is also in Brookledge st. Neither is associated with the other nor have they connections of any kind.

MOVIE STARS IN PAGEANT FOR SHRINERS

Los Angeles, June 6 (AP)—Seven thousand Shriners here at their 55th annual convention drop the curtain today on a week of fun-making.

With the post of outer guard, only contested office of the imperial council, filled by Walter S. Siggins of Wheeling, W. Va., there remained but two more fun items, the installation of the 13 officers and selection of a 1930 convention city.

In a brilliant parade, 10000 Shriners marched before thousands of spectators last night.

Under the dazzling beams of arc lights, the Shriners staged their official review on Figueroa st. The bands, patrols and chanters of 51 temples marched by street thrones and into the Coliseum before nearly 70 000 spectators for three hours.

To match the splendor of the Shriners parade, the motion picture industry prepared to flash 24 000 000 000 candle power on nearly 40 floats in a pageant to-night.

GIRL KILLS SELF IN 12-STORY LOVE LEAP

Chicago, June 6 (AP)—Miss Barbara Cole, 28-year-old show girl, jumped 12 stories from her apartment to her death, giving as her reason only this notation on the flyleaf of her diary: "I love Ed. Price 1200 Avon st."

The operator rushed to the front of the building and looked out. The body of Miss Cole was there. Edwin Page, a broker, lives at the address given by the actress. He said he had known her for some time. Yesterday afternoon he declared she telephoned, declaring he was growing "cold and distant toward her."

In books in the apartment the young woman's address was given simply as "London, England."

SOME HOPE FOR WHEAT MEN

Washington, June 6—Wheat growers need not be too discouraged, according to a survey made public by the bureau of agricultural economics of the Department of Agriculture.

ROGERS WRONG ON SNOBS, SAYS COPELAND

The war of snob versus anti-snob is at fever heat again today, aftermath of the address made Saturday night by Associate Professor Robert E. Rogers of Technology to the Tech. senior class.

While Prof. Rogers over the radio was defending his speech in which he advised the Technology men and all college men to be snobs, Dr. Royal S. Copeland, United States Senator from New York, was telling members of the graduating class of Davis and Elkins College in Elkins, W. Va., that the Rogers advice was all wrong.

"Don't be a snob; don't try to marry the boss' daughter," said Senator Copeland. "God bless you if you are lucky enough to marry his stenographer."

"I care not what particular calling you may follow," the senator from New York asserted, "You will not live up to your responsibilities as an American unless you have a part in all those things having to do with the common welfare.

"There is nothing nobler than to be a citizen of this great republic."

In his radio defense of his "snob address" Prof. Rogers said it never had occurred to him that his use of the word would provoke such a storm of criticism.

The Technology instructor declared the word "snob" is "simply an ignorant one applied by people who know no better to anybody who possesses any superiority of speech, manners, carriage and intellectual processes."

TELLS FIANCEE THAT HE'S TOO TIRED TO WED

A prospective bridegroom who was too tired to get out of bed to be married was the chief witness in a divorce decree granted today by Judge Sumner H. Brandt against a groom, widow who asked Patrick Gardiner, 27, of Ten Hills rd., Somerville, before Judge M. E. Sullivan, court for larceny of $250.

The plaintiff, a bride-elect of the Franklin Square House and formerly of Oldtown, Me., alleged she gave that sum to Gardiner a month ago to furnish a honeymoon flat in anticipation of a wedding which was later called off.

Gardiner was found guilty of the larceny charge sentenced to a year in the House of Correction and released in $2000 bail on appeal.

According to the testimony of the widow she was introduced to Gardiner last April by his sister, Miss Dorothy Watts.

As her contribution to their mutual bliss, the young widow declared, she gave Gardiner $185, bought a wedding trousseau and pawned her jewelry for $150 to make up a total of $335.

On May 15, the date of the wedding, the witness testified, she called for her prospective husband to go to the church and "he just stayed in bed." Somehow, she never saw the groom after that.

Gardiner, according to her further testimony, sent word downstairs through his sister that he was too tired to get through with the ceremony and begged the latter not to do such a thing.

DEMANDS DRUG PENALTIES FOR SHIP OWNERS

Washington, June 6.—Drastic penalties would be meted out to Asiatic sea captains or whose vessels are guilty of opium and narcotic drugs are smuggled into the country, according to Fiorello H. La Guardia, U. S. Representative of New York.

To accomplish this end, La Guardia urged the Senate to adopt the House amendment to the tariff bill to assess heavy fines on owners of smuggling ships. Senatorial leaders have approved the proposal.

Heretofore, La Guardia said, steamship owners have been able to escape punishment because a joker in the present law where by only the captain of a ship can be held liable to penalty in most cases.

As an example of the laxity of the existing law, La Guardia pointed a table showing that 35 seizures of opium have been made on Pacific steamers since April 1, 1925. The total amount involved in these seizures was 3,681,181 ounces.

Most of the smuggled opium, La Guardia declared, is from Japan, and one smuggler caught with 20,000 ounces of the drug, although the seizure was made in port.

It was to see that the reason for these common sea fee a few dollars is no fault of the officials in charge of the enforcement of the law, said La Guardia. "It is entirely the fault of the law."

SOCIETY FAVORITES IN NEW HOME

Mr. and Mrs. George Jackson Hill, Jr., Back from Europe

COL. LINDBERGH and his bride are not the only honeymooners who have surprised their friends. Today I found that delightful couple Mr. and Mrs. George Jackson Hill, Jr., moving into their first home, a lovely little place in Cohasset. And they had slipped into town on Monday night, having arrived on the Vulcania from their European honeymoon. Mrs. Hill, the former Miss Elizabeth Heath of Heath Hill, Brookline, was one of April's prettiest bride whose wedding was a smart society event. They were with Mr. Hill's parents, Dr. and Mrs. George J. Hill at 18 Commonwealth ave.

NOT ALONG THE USUAL honeymoon trails went this couple. For them the lure of gleaming white roads in the smartest of the new French cars, a couple of weeks in Naples, then in Rome, and a wonderful sojourn at Cannes. Cohasset is to be their permanent home.

IF THERE'S ANYTHING A debutante who has been abroad thoroughly enjoys it is boon swinging another of her set adventure-bound across the seas. A group of these young travellers last evening sped Miss Rosamond Musgrave of Commonwealth ave. on the first lap of her journey to old world pleasures when she took the midnight train for New York. Miss Musgrave sailed early this morning on the liner de Grasse for Havre.

THE OLD-FASHIONED flower garden on the Longfellow estate at 105 Brattle st, Cambridge, is the setting in which Miss Jane Cowl will preside at the tea table in the big society fete for the Neighborhood House tomorrow. These are Mrs. Allen Jackson, Mrs. Francis Parkman, Mrs. Robert Henderson, Miss Edith Penman, Mrs. Frederick Lovejoy, Mrs Warren Lovejoy, Mrs Warren McPherson, Mrs. Philip G. FLAG WINNERS SEE NEW YORK SHRINES

New York, June 6—Thirty-six young Americans, 18 boys and 18 girls, stood on the plain of West Point and gazed reverently for a moment at Old Glory flying over the United States Military Academy and the corps of cadets, the finest young men in the land.

For that moment they experienced the greatest thrill they have had since they gathered last Sunday in Philadelphia and began a patriotic pilgrimage to the historic shrines of America.

The youngsters are the regional champions of the first annual flag contest of the United States Flag Association, sponsored by the Hearst newspapers. Since their start Sunday they have been visiting the historic spots with which New England abounds. Boston, Plymouth, Concord and Lexington.

But it remained for West Point with its cadets, its battlements and buildings and its traditions to provide the climax for the first part of the trip.

AT HORSE SHOW

The boy and girl pilgrims awakened at the Thayer Hotel, West Point, and began a tour of inspection of the Military Academy. Then, as guests of Lieut.-Col. R. C. Richardson, commandant of the Military Academy, they attended the West Point horse show.

From West Point the tourists went by bus to Newburgh to visit the famous Hasbrouck House, where George Washington made his headquarters for some time. The house is now a museum for Revolutionary and Colonial relics.

From Newburgh, the party made the historic trip down the Hudson river on the steamship Robert Fulton of the Hudson River Day Line.

Debarking late in the afternoon at West 42d st. they went to the McAlpin Hotel, which will be its headquarters during their three-day visit to New York.

After dinner, the youngsters divided into small groups, under chaperones, and went to the theaters or toured the city.

After 119 Years Store Name Goes

Salem, N. H., June 6—One hundred and 24 years ago John Ewins came here from Newburyport, Mass., bought the tavern opposite the "village green," and turned it into a store. This week, John Ewins' great grandson, James Ewins, sold the store to Walter F. Haigh. Between 1878 and 1883 the place had an owner other than a Ewins, but for 119 out of the 124 years it has been in the Ewins family. The Ewins have owned considerable of the property in the vicinity and the corner has become known far and wide as Ewins' Corner.

MOTHERS now learn value of MAGNESIA

Because it is so helpful in keeping babies and children healthy and happy, every mother should know about Phillips Milk of Magnesia.

This harmless, almost tasteless preparation is most effective in relieving those symptoms of babies and children generally caused by souring food in the little digestive tract, such as sour-belching, frequent vomiting, feverishness, colic. As a mild laxative, it acts gently, but certainly, to open the little bowels in constipation, colds, children's diseases.

A teaspoonful of Phillips Milk of Magnesia does the work of half a pint of lime water in neutralizing cow's milk for infant feeding, and preventing hard curds. Its many uses for mother and child are fully explained in the interesting book "Useful Information." It will be sent you, FREE. Write The Phillips Co., 117 Hudson St., New York, N. Y.

In buying, be sure to get genuine Phillips Milk of Magnesia. Doctors have prescribed it over 50 years.

"Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. Registered Trade Mark of The Chas. H. Phillips Chemical Co., and its predecessor, Chas. H. Phillips, since 1875.

SHOUSE DINNER PASSED UP BY SOUTHERNERS

Washington, June 6 (INS)—Harmony the Democrats have been talking about and some of them praying for since the great November split, is proving very elusive.

No! only has Bishop James Cannon, Jr., gone on the warpath in Virginia again, with a plea to the anti-Smith bolters to stand firm and name their own candidate for governor, but the widely advertised "harmony dinner" to be given here next Monday night in honor of Jouett Shouse of Kansas is being quietly—and in some cases noisily—put by anti-Smith Southerners.

Shouse recently was elected to organize and preside over permanent Democratic headquarters in Washington.

Local friends of Shouse arranged for the dinner. Naturally National Chairman John J. Raskob was invited and put down for a speech. Smith is not be present.

Senators Simmons of North Carolina, Please of South Carolina, Hetlin of Alabama, and other well-known southerners to whom the very name of Raskob is anathema are pleading previous engagements for next Monday night.

Glass and Swanson of Virginia also have "other engagements." Harris and George, of Georgia, have not accepted; all senators from the two Carolinas, and Sheppard of Texas will be missing.

DEATH SUSPECT SLIPS GUARD, FLEES BOAT

San Francisco, June 6 (AP)—William Tallman, young radio operator, arrested on board the steamship Admiral Benson on a charge of murder in connection with the slaying of Mrs. Virginia Patty, a Portland, Ore., banker's wife, at Los Angeles, was missing when the vessel docked here.

Investigation showed he had unscrewed the lock on his stateroom door with a piece of iron torn from a radiator. Not knowing the prisoner had fled, Capt. Martin Shoat placed a guard on duty outside the door.

Police believe Tallman jumped overboard and swam ashore, or walked down the gangplank before his disappearance was discovered.

After the discovery of Mrs. Patty's body in the closet of a Los Angeles apartment, alleged to have been rented by Tallman, police learned he was aboard the Admiral Benson, en route here from Los Angeles. His arrest for murder was ordered by radio.

The editor of the Hearst $25,000 temperance prize contest received yesterday from Mgr. John L. Belford, one of the seven judges of the contest, the following statement:

"Judging by some of the comments I have heard and some I have seen, Mr. Hearst evidently blundered when he chose the judges for the temperance contest.

"He should have selected leaders of the Anti-Saloon League and permitted them to hand the prizes to Bishop Clarence True Wilson, F. Scott McBride, Bill Anderson and Mabel Willebrandt!"

Soundness of Temperance Plans Win Wide Favor

The plans of Capt. Thomas W. Therkildsen of New York and James B. Quinlan, Jr., of Alhambra, Cal., which won third and fourth prizes respectively have been highly commended. Expression of opinions follow:

REV. ROLAND D. SAWYER of Ware, Congregational minister and a member of the Massachusetts legislature—Mr. Quinlan's plan has a double advantage. It is based on sound sense and is practicable. We in Massachusetts should be especially interested in its referendum feature, for while some Rotten may use the machinery to get it before the people for a vote, happily in Massachusetts we have such machinery. Either under the public police laws when they enlarged their field. Clearly, both of these cases, were an outgrowth of present conditions.

I believe it is only fair that the people be allowed to pass on the question whether they want to continue a law that has produced such results and the referendum suggested clearly would furnish that avenue of expression.

JOSEPH R. HAMLEN, chairman Harvard Fund Council and president of Harvard Alumni Bulletin—Mr. Hearst is to be commended for the great service he has rendered the country. While I am opposed on principle to retaining the Eighteenth Amendment in the Constitution and have eventually it will be repealed, I am in favor of supporting a plan such as Capt. Therkildsen has suggested. As a result of the adoption of prohibition, we have been confronted with serious problems matched only by the numerous difficulties in the way of enforcement. The whole question resolves itself into one of procedure. There is nothing of morality in it nor is it a social or political question; nor is it the first time that the importance of a remedy has been raised to exceed that of the disease to be cured.

In my opinion, the principle of prohibition is unusual and unchristian and its results after 10 years are just what might have been expected. True temperance has had a serious setback. Give Capt. Therkildsen's plan a try, and I am of the opinion that we will have taken a step forward in the matter of restoring the nation to a state of sobriety.

DIST.-ATTY. WILLIAM J. FOLEY—Prohibition has been in effect, if at all, for about 10 years. The suggestion that the people now be enabled to give their opinion as to their desire to continue under the present conditions, I believe, is a worthy one.

The President in this Nation recently stated that only 8 per cent of the crimes could be attributed to prohibition. A man examining the records of our courts would find great difficulty in determining just which cases are attributable to our present dry law. Many cases not so grouped by the records on their face would be so classified by the facts.

A few months ago four young men received in our court sentences aggregating about 100 years for robbery. An examination of the docket would never disclose the fact that prohibition had anything to do with their crimes, but these young men held up a crap game, knowing that the victims, because they were themselves violating the law, would not report to the police. They were right in their reckoning.

Nearly a month afterwards in the investigation of a murder case, the police learned for the first time that the robbery in question had taken place and the arrests resulted. These young men had been hi-jackers. They then learned that victims of hi-jacking who were themselves violating the law, would not report to the police. The hold-up of the illegal crap game was only one step from hi-jacking. They learned that as the result of their hi-jacking experiences.

About a month ago, five young men were sentenced for robbery of a payroll. The terms they received also aggregated 100 years. Some of them had been arrested on numerous occasions for hi-jacking. When they were convicted of the robbery of a payroll. Their experiences at hi-jacking stood them in good stead when they enlarged their field. Clearly, both of these cases, were an outgrowth of present conditions.

I believe it is only fair that the people be allowed to pass on the question whether they want to continue a law that has produced such results and the referendum suggested clearly would furnish that avenue of expression.

JOSEPH R. HAMLEN, chairman Harvard Fund Council and president of Harvard Alumni Bulletin—Mr. Hearst is to be commended for the great service he has rendered the country. HOW CANADIANS HANDLE RUM proved or favored Government control in one form or another. Thirty to 40 per cent made reference directly or by inference to the various Canadian systems.

With this in mind, Mr. Hearst invited the venerable Archdeacon Joseph H. Dodshon, president of the Church Temperance Society, an adjunct of the Protestant Episcopal Church in the United States, and Dr. H. H. Sheldon, head of the department of physics of New York University, and a well-known scientist, to make the survey.

Dr. Dodshon is thoroughly familiar with the subject and has studied temperance and prohibition from many angles over a period of 10 years. Dr. Dodshon is conversant with the chemical and pathological effects of alcohol on the human body, and approached the study from the viewpoint of a trained scientific investigator.

The commission's only instructions were to ascertain facts, and they were subject to no restrictions of any nature.

PLEASING CONTRAST

The commission's report offers encouragement to all believers in temperance. It furnishes ample substantiation of the often expressed opinion to the effect that government control results in gains for moderation, temperance, increased consumption of light wines and beers and the definite decline of the use of narcotics. The commission visited Quebec, Montreal, Toronto and other cities and interviewed many officials and other persons who were in a position to give accurate information.

Systems vary in the several provinces they visited. All may have minor defects, but in the main they have been surprisingly successful as a means toward temperance. Conditions generally in Canada, the commission found, offered a pleasing contrast to the situation in the United States under prohibition.

SCHOOL CHILDREN NOW BUDGETING

New York, June 6 (AP)—School children of this city no longer will be compelled to wrestle with such traditional mathematical problems as carpeting floors and splitting cord wood.

A new syllabus issued by Supt. William J. O'Shea calls for the modernizing of mathematical problems, such as figuring family budgets, bank interest, sales discounts and taxes. Greater stress also will be placed on oral work with the view of solving mathematical problems of everyday life without paper and pencil.

DR. WILSON AND DARROW TELL LIQUOR VIEWS

Washington, June 6 (AP)—In the presence of an audience which gave vent to its feelings with hissing, booing, heckling, jeering and cheering, Clarence Darrow, noted attorney, and Dr. Clarence True Wilson, secretary of the Methodist Board of Temperance, Prohibition and Public Morals, have told Washington what they think about prohibition.

GIVES NO DECISION

They debated the question: "Resolved, that prohibition is right in principle, a success in practice, and should be enforced." Senator Barkley of Kentucky, presiding, announced that no decision would be given and that Senator Fess of Ohio, who was to have spoken in the affirmative, had become suddenly ill and that Mr. Wilson would take his place.

"I am very strongly against prohibition," Mr. Darrow said, "because I like to take a drink and because I want to mind my own business. I object to any organization of preachers or other highbinders getting together and telling me what I can't do.

TO LIVE OWN LIFE

"As long as I live I'm going to live my own life and to choose my own religion, if I want to, without interfering with the rights of my fellowmen. We propose to mind our own business, and we propose to make you mind yours, if you have any."

Dr. Wilson urged that prohibition be given the same chance for success given the liquor traffic during its approximately 140 years of legalized existence in America. He insisted that "Uncle Sam has gone out of the liquor traffic forever" and that the prosperity of the last ten years was due almost entirely to prohibition.

"We've had ten years of prohibition, mostly under the wets," he said. "Prohibition has given us the greatest clean-up in American politics of any single movement in the history of our country. It was intended to annihilate the license system, and has ended the system.

Raps Prohibition

Clarence Darrow, noted Chicago lawyer, who attacked prohibition in a debate with Dr. Clarence True Wilson, secretary of the Methodist Board of Temperance, in Washington.

EQUITY DEFIED BY HOLLYWOOD PRODUCERS

Hollywood, Cal., June 6 (AP)—Motion picture producers, after a conference that ended early today, virtually defied the Actors' Equity Association.

A statement issued by Cecil B. DeMille, president of the Motion Picture Association, said the producers would not agree to the order promulgated yesterday by Equity that members only not engage in sound or talking pictures except under standard Equity contracts.

Frank Gillmore, president of Equity, had declared that only under the form of contract adopted by his organization would members of Equity be permitted to engage in sound or talking picture productions. The ruling was effective immediately, it was said.

Demille's statement read:

"We will continue to engage artists for our productions only under the four and just form of contract which was approved by representatives of both producers and motion picture actors. We decline to be restricted as to the source of our talent."

The declaration of Gillmore yesterday, it was pointed out by several producers, would have the effect of almost making every producing concern operate under a "closed shop" agreement.

Beauty Bureau for Children Planned

Fight to Subdue Pillar of Flame From Gas Well

Buffalo, June 6 (AP)—Workmen were battling today to subdue a 75-foot pillar of flame roaring from a gas well which exploded on a farm near East Aurora, killing two men and injuring eight others.

Employees of the Iroquois Gas Corporation were preparing to play steam against the blazing column when the gas ignited. Steam was to be turned into the blazing pit, and it was feared the flames, fed by 15,000,000 cubic feet of gas, may have to be checked by wrecking the well casing with nitroglycerine. Two boilers were being set up and workmen will try to force a blanket of steam into the blazing pit, and it was feared the flames, fed by 15,000,000 cubic feet of gas, may have to be checked by wrecking the well casing with nitroglycerine. Hoover Is Regarded as a God by Tibetans

Rome, June 6 (AP) President Hoover is regarded as a kind of god by Tibetan tribes, Prof. Nicholas Poerich, artist who lives in New York, told the Associated Press today on his return to civilization from five years of travel in India, Thibet and Mongolia.

President Hoover's work seems to have filtered by word of mouth into Thibet.

Mr. Roerich said the name "Hoover" had been distorted by the Tibetans into "Kooverа," which is their name for the God of Happiness. He found an old picture of Mr. Hoover, taken many years ago, enshrined in a Tibetan house.
